Course Description:

The Advanced Placement Computer Science course is the third course in the series of computer science courses offered in Prince Georges County. Because the development of computer programs to solve problems is a skill fundamental to the study of computer science, a large part of the course is built around the development of computer programs or parts of programs that correctly solve a given problem. The course also emphasizes the design issues that make programs understandable, adaptable, and, when appropriate, reusable. At the same time, the development of useful computer programs and classes is used as a context for developing other important concepts in computer science, including the development and analysis of algorithms, the development and use of fundamental data structures, and the study of standard algorithms and typical application. In addition, an understanding of the basic hardware and software components of computer systems and the responsible use of these systems are integral parts of the course.
