Agriculture and the Problem of Monopoly Jon Lauck, 2016-02-01 The breathtaking number of mergers and joint ventures

among agribusiness firms has left independent American farmers facing the power of an increasingly concentrated buying sector. The origin of farmers' concern with such economic concentration dates back to protests against meatpackers and railroads in the late nineteenth century. Jon Lauck examines the dimensions of this problem in the American Midwest in the decades following World War II. He analyzes the nature of competition within meat packing and grain markets. In addition, he addresses concerns about corporate entry into production agriculture and the potential displacement of a production system defined by independent family farms. Lauck also considers the ability of farmers to organize in order to counter the market power of large scale agribusiness buyers. He explores the use of farmer cooperatives and other mechanisms which may increase the bargaining power of farmers. The book offers the first serious historical examination of the National Farmers Organization which fully embraced the bargaining power cause in the postwar period. Lauck finds that independent farmers' attempts at organization have been more successful than previously recognized but he also shows that their successes have been undermined by the growing concentration and power of agribusiness firms justifying a new approach to antitrust law in agricultural markets.

Constructing Corporate America Kenneth Lipartito, David B. Sicilia, 2004 This collection of cutting edge research reviews the evolution of the American corporation, the dominant trends in the way it has been studied and at the same time introduces some new perspectives on the historical trajectory of the business organization as a social institution. The authors draw on cultural theory, anthropology, political theory and legal history to consider the place of the firm in nineteenth and twentieth century American Society.

Along the way, Lehne probes some of the most crucial dilemmas facing government and business today.

Cooperating on Competition in Transatlantic Economic Relations C. Damro, 2006-10-10 In this in-depth study, Damro explains the creation of a formal cooperative framework for preventing disputes in transatlantic competition policy. The findings suggest that while regulators remain constrained by domestic institutions, they play an important role in explaining why the cooperative framework is largely a discretionary one.

The American Corporation Today Carl Kaysen, 1996 Here is the American corporation from every angle: its postwar history, its relation to the law, its financing, its impact on technological innovation, its role as employer and as political force, and much more. The contributors all of whom are recognized experts in their fields not only tackle many of the same key areas that the contributors to Mason's classic study looked at but they also illuminate issues that have only arisen in recent years The Challenge of Remaining Innovative Sally H. Clarke, Naomi R. Lamoreaux, Steven W. Usselman, 2009 The contributors explore two main themes the challenge of remaining innovative and the necessity of managing institutional boundaries in doing so The book is organized into four parts which move outward from individual firms to networks or clusters of firms to consultants and other intermediaries in the private economy who operate outside of the firms themselves and finally to government institutions and politics Editor
