Primary Sources

Armillary sphere. N.d. Invention made with metal. King Sejong the Great Memorial Hall, Seoul.

An invention that King Sejong ordered his men to make in order to innovate Korean technology at the time. The Sphere is mainly used for astrological purposes. This Armillary Sphere helped my research in a couple of ways. First it showed us what kind of technology was considered innovative in Sejong's time helping us put on scale his other inventions, plus this sphere also shows us what it looked like.

Yi, Do. Hunminjeongeum. 1446.

When King Sejong wanted to give the common folks of Korea the ability to read, he introduced the Hunminjeongeum, a document describing the new language Sejong has created. This document describes why it is King Sejong made Hangul and what it will be used for. It also compares the new language, Hangul with the language Korea was using before that, Hanja. For my project on King Sejong and his legacy, this document proves to have many of the things I was looking for. Several ideas and summary's of those ideas are used for my research.
