

READING COMPREHENSION

READING COMPREHENSION MADE EASY!

1. Take the reading comprehension part test.
2. Look at the length of all the passages provided.
3. Focus on the passage.
4. Read the passage first, and then read the questions. In an attempt to save time, some students do the other way around. It may be helpful when answering questions regarding details. However, it prevents you from understanding the whole passage and you might encounter problems when dealing with questions on inferring details and predicting results/ conclusions.
5. Read passages with more questions.
6. Read the short passages first, save the long ones last. One of the most annoying things about this type of the test is that some entrance tests would provide a very long passage, about 4-page in length, then asking just 2 – 3 questions.
7. Familiarize yourself with transition words.
8. Understand the questions.

TRANSITION WORDS

Type	Example
Continuing Idea Words	Similarly; Moreover; Additionally; In the same way; Likewise
Conclusion Words	Thus; Therefore; Hence; So; In summary; In conclusion
Contradiction or Contrast Words	Nevertheless; Nonetheless; However; But; Yet; Although; Even though; Notwithstanding; Despite; In spite of; On the other hand; While; Unlike

COMMON QUESTIONS – Know what the question is asking for and then learn best how to attack them. Major reading question types would include the following:

MAIN TOPIC

In main idea questions, you will be asked to determine the unifying theme or main topic of the passage. The questions often begin with:

- "The article is about the..."
- "The main topic of the passage is..."
- "The main theme of the passage is..."
- "Which of the following statements would best describe the central idea of the paragraph?"
- "Which of the following most accurately states the main idea of the passage?"

- ✓ Look in the first and last paragraphs (when applicable). Some authors use the inverted pyramid style of writing where they present ideas from broad to specific.
- ✓ Look for words that would state the author's conclusion. The main idea is sometimes presented during the concluding part of the passage.

You may encounter questions that would ask you to identify the author's intention or purpose. Usually, the questions are in these forms:

- "The primary purpose of the passage is to..."
- "The main concern of the paragraph is to..."
- "In the passage above, the author is primarily concerned with..."

OBJECTIVE DETAILS

These questions are primarily concerned with who, what, when, why, where and how or simply the nit-picky details presented by the writer in the passage. The questions are in these forms:

- "According to the passage/ author..."
- "The author states the following, except..."

- ✓ Go to the specific paragraph in the passage that is being referred to. Don't forget to read a few lines before and after it.
