Adoption And The Coloured Child:

Adoption and the Coloured Child Diana Kareh,1970

Adoption in a Color-blind Society Pamela Anne Quiroz,2007

Recent adoption policy changes are based on assumptions that race is no longer relevant and that if government officials and activists would just get out of the way adoption would provide one means of eradicating the fixation on race and racism

Adoption in a Color Blind Society examines the public presentation of private adoption agency Web sites and race talk in adoption chat rooms to lay bare the lie of color blind discourse and reveal that rather than eroding the meaning of race has shifted The private adoption market provides an illustration of Eduardo Bonilla Silva s thesis of the Latinization of the U S as biracial children are either downgraded or upgraded into a tri racial system of categories depending at least in part upon their heritage Drawing also on popular adoption literature and information in the public domain the book provides a critical interpretation of the discursive practices of private adoption and argues that despite the current discourse of equity in contemporary adoption African American children continue to be marginalized as bargain basement deals Color blind individualism extends beyond the U S to our new global reality where children are simply another commodity within the transnational marketplace of adoption

Complex Adoption and Assisted Reproductive Technology ,2001-03-07 New pathways to parenthood are being traveled by growing numbers of couples and single adults including many who face medical and social barriers to having children From a psychological standpoint families formed by complex adoption and assisted reproductive technology ART are first and foremost just that families Yet they also face a unique array of issues and challenges that may be clarified and resolved in the therapeutic setting This much needed book provides a deeper understanding of the ways that complex adoption and ART shape the life experience of children and parents identifying important areas and methods for assessment and treatment Combining developmental and ecological research with in depth case material the book establishes an integrative framework for clinical practice The authors draw upon knowledge and skills gained from working in a variety of new family contexts In the area of adoption many new options have evolved that differ from traditional practices of adoption at birth Thousands of older children in foster and institutional care in the United States and abroad are awaiting permanent placements Open adoption kinship adoption and transracial adoption are also transforming family life as is the use of ART which raises significant issues of family identity and family process The book explores such key themes as the significance of early experience the capacity to recover from exposure to trauma the impact of heredity and the difference that environment can make and the centrality of primary attachment relationships Also discussed are the impact of bias and other issues affecting families of difference including lesbian and gay families Concluding chapters consider promising future directions for training and research This is an important resource for social workers family therapists clinical psychologists psychiatrists and other professionals working with children and families as well as researchers and students in these fields It will serve as a text in advanced undergraduate and graduate level courses The Cambridge Companion to British Black and Asian Literature (1945–2010) Deirdre Osborne,2016-10-19

Post World War II mass migration to Great Britain altered its demographic composition more markedly than in any other period in its history resulting in a modern multicultural nation state shaped by the ethnic diversity of its citizenry Populations from African Caribbean and South Asian locations arriving in Britain post war brought diasporic sensibilities and literary heritages that have profoundly transformed British national culture leading to a more complex and inclusive sense of its past The Companion to British Black and Asian Literature 1945 2010 examines the creative impact of this rich infusion upon English literature against the backdrop of the seismic social and economic changes triggered by colonialism and migration multiculturalism and contemporary globalization From Intercountry Adoption to Global Surrogacy Karen Smith Rotabi,Nicole F. Bromfield,2016-12-12

Intercountry adoption has undergone a radical decline since 2004 when it reached a peak of approximately 45 000 children adopted globally Its practice had been linked to conflict poverty gender inequality and claims of human trafficking ultimately leading to the establishment of the Hague Convention on Intercountry Adoption HCIA This international private law along with the Convention on the Rights of the Child affirm the best interests of the child as paramount in making decisions on behalf of children and families with obligations specifically oriented to safeguards in adoption practices In 2004 as intercountry adoption peaked and then began a dramatic decline commercial global surrogacy contracts began to take off in India Global surrogacy gained in popularity owing in part to improved assisted reproductive technology methods the ease with which people can make global surrogacy arrangements and same sex couples seeking the option to have their own genetically related children Yet regulation remains an issue so much so that the Hague Conference on Private International Law has undertaken research and assessed the many dilemmas as an expert group considers drafting a new law with some similarities to the HCIA and a strong emphasis on parentage This ground breaking book presents a detailed history and applies policy and human rights issues with an emphasis on the best interests of the child within intercountry adoption and the new conceptions of protection necessary in global surrogacy To meet this end voices of surrogate mothers in the US and India ground discourse as authors consider the human rights concerns and policy implications For both intercountry adoption and global surrogacy the complexity of the social context anchors the discourse inclusive of the intersections of poverty and privilege This examination of the inevitable problems is presented at a time in which the pathways to global surrogacy appear to be shifting as the Supreme Court of India weighs in on the future of the industry there while Thailand Cambodia and other countries have banned the practice all together There is speculation that countries in Africa and possibly Central America appear poised to pick up the multi million dollar industry as the demand for healthy infants continues on Adoption of Non-White Children Lois Raynor,2021-11-07 Can adoptive homes be found for non white children Will the children and their new families be happy together though of different race Will they feel like a family Originally published in 1970 this book is an account of a four year project in which International Social Service of Great Britain joined with Bedford College London University to provide a first class adoption service for babies born in Britain of diverse racial origins and to study the outcome of the adoptions In addition a survey sought to determine the number of these children needing adoption homes and a nationwide Adoption Resource Exchange was established to co ordinate the efforts of the numerous agencies seeking parents for them The author examines the project s experience of interracial adoption and relates it to all good adoption practice This title was a welcome addition to the literature on adoption at the time It would have been indispensable to social work practitioners and to students and lecturers on social work courses but it was more than a handbook for those professionally involved The book is well informed and written with style and compassion many readers will be fascinated by the way in which children of Asian African West Indian and mixed parentage became integrated into English families in spite of racial differences It is a success story Today it can be read in its historical context This book is a re issue originally published in 1970 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication Teachers as Collaborative Partners Sandra J. Winn Tutwiler, 2017-10-03 Teachers as Collaborative Partners assists future and inservice teachers in developing a research based framework for understanding the dynamics of school family and community relations It provides foundational knowledge important for understanding families and communities while exploring conditions that influence family school community interactions The text is designed to engage the critical reflective capability of teachers in ways that will support their ability to work with diverse families in a variety of teaching contexts Part I focuses first on the social cultural and historical roots of the family with specific attention to the evolution of public schools and the family as interdependent social institutions and then on the multiple ways families conceive of and conduct family life as well as the impact of community attributes on the work of families and schools Part II explores the relationship among families communities and schools within social political legal and educational contexts Part III addresses educational practices that respond to authentic partnerships with families and communities The goals of the text are supported by pedagogical tools that provide opportunities for readers to make connections between information in each chapter and realistic family community school situations Case Studies are embedded in most chapters These serve to complement research based with authentic and personally articulated experiences of parents Teachers then have the opportunity to make connections between theory and lived experiences Each chapter includes Inquiry and Reflection questions and Guided Observations to engage readers in case study analysis situated learning exercises and classroom and community observations and reflections The Family Community School Profile introduced in this text as a teacher generated summary allows for evaluation of Adoption - But at what Price?, 2003
