Aging Aircraft Usaf Workload And Material Consumption Life Cycle Patterns:

Aging Aircraft Raymond Pyles,2003 To help improve the Air Force s ability to foresee the implications for safety aircraft availability and cost of its plans to retain aircraft fleets for service lives that may be as long as 80 years and to identify actions that will mitigate or avoid some of the more severe consequences this study measures how the USAF aircraft fleets ages relate to maintenance and modification workloads and material consumption A Survey of Aircraft Structural-life Management Programs in the U.S. Navy, the Canadian Forces, and the U.S. Air Force Yool Kim,Stephen Sheehy,Darryl Lenhardt,2006 The average age of aircraft in the U S Air Force is 22 making aging an increasing concern The Air Force program responsible for maintaining the structural safety of its aircraft faces challenges however such as budgetary pressures regulations and communication issues The authors sought insights on these issues by comparing similar programs in other services Their observations suggest the value of clear policies independent assessments standard metrics and open and clear communication Air Force Journal of Logistics ,2005 Valuing Programmed Depot Maintenance Speed Edward Geoffrey Keating,Elvira N. Loreda,2006 Part of a larger RAND Project Air Force study on capability based programming this report introduces a revealed preference methodology to estimate the value to the United States Air Force of expediting F 15 fighter jet programmed depot maintenance PDM Such a valuation estimate would be useful in depot level cost benefit analysis The authors rely on the fact that the Air Force has chosen to pay for intermittent PDM on F 15s to assert that F 15s must have enough value after PDM visits to justify PDM costs Air Force expenditure data suggest that a typical fiscal year 2005 PDM visit cost about 3 2 million Using the aircraft valuation curves consistent with PDM being worthwhile the authors find that expediting an F 15 s last PDM visit by a month must be worth at least 60 000 However using a plausible annual aircraft valuation decline rate they find that expediting an old F 15 s last PDM visit by a month would be worth around 75 000 while expediting a new F 15 s first PDM visit by a month would be worth more than 180 000 This report also explores various robustness enhancements Consideration of aging aircraft issues for instance tends to increase the estimated value of expedited PDM Programmed Depot Maintenance Capacity Assessment Tool Elvira N. Loreda,Raymond Pyles,Don Snyder,2007 This monograph describes a model for evaluating the combined capacity of organic U S Air Force owned and operated and contractor maintenance assets to meet aircraft programmed depot maintenance PDM workloads The PDM Capacity Assessment Tool PDMCAT forecasts the average number of aircraft that will be in PDM status each year over several decades based on the initial number of aircraft in PDM status the physical capacity of the facility or facilities number of docks available for conducting PDM work the PDM induction policy the period allowed between the completion of one PDM and the start of the next and the minimum hands on flow time the minimum time it would take a facility to complete a PDM if only one aircraft were in PDM status While not directly part of the model the derived induction data can be used to estimate both near and long term obligation authority requirements for different induction policies labor rates and workload forecasts To illustrate the model s operations and capabilities we applied the model to evaluate the U S Air Force s current capacity for supporting KC 135 PDM and examined several options for improving both near and long term availability In the process we discovered that while future annual fleet costs increase and availability decreases with age and workload they do so rather less rapidly because the aircraft induction rates the number of aircraft inducted each year decrease as the PDM flow time increases This leads to a less drastic cost and availability forecast than usual

Budget Estimating Relationships for Depot-level Reparables in the Air Force Flying Hour Program Gregory G. Hildebrandt, 2007 Budget estimating relationships BERs for flying depot level reparables DLRs explain the direct effect of specified variables on obligated funds associated with spare parts that directly support the U S Air Force USAF Flying Hour Program In FY02 net sales of DLRs to Air Force commands hit historic highs To provide the Air Force Cost Analysis Improvement Group with a tool to better understand the commands budgetary submissions we develop several explanatory BERs to understand why flying DLRs are at their particular levels Using longitudinal regression statistical methods we explain the historical net sales of flying DLRs using estimating models that relate net sales to the contemporaneous values of aircraft characteristics operational tempo and time related variables This is but one part of a larger project to develop better estimating methods for use by the acquisition community and to examine the impact of Air Force and DoD policies on weapon system costs The findings will also be of interest to those in the national security community who are involved in analyzing alternative military postures and to members of the aircraft industry s analytical community
