Foreword

Director General of Health

Tan Sri Dato' Seri Dr. Noor Hisham bin Abdullah
Director General of Health, Malaysia

I am delighted to be part of this year's 14th National Conference for Clinical Research (NCCR) themed, "Niche to Norm". This year's conference will address a triad of niche areas in medicine such as precision medicine, clinical research, and digital health. The update of the advances in these fields will sow the seed of reshaping and equipping the nation towards a sustainable future of health and healthcare.

The exponential growth in the global development of precision medicine in recent years is exhilarating, hence the 14th NCCR's focus on the niche is timely to provide the platform for us a glimpse through the future of healthcare. It is an exciting niche that will advance the sustainability of the healthcare system by maximizing the healthcare technologies in preserving the health of the nation. Therefore, the Malaysian healthcare industry will need to consider the myriads of issues such as the principle of ethics and legality, the cost and the value-added role, as well as the process of embedding data into workable action that has a meaningful impact on society.

Recently, Malaysia has attested to the world that we possess the quality in the clinical research that leads to the revolution of Hepatitis C's treatment and diagnosis. This historic clinical research breakthrough will reduce the overall cost and the duration of treatment of Hepatitis C desperately needed in the Low- and Middle-Income Countries (LMICs). In addition, the introduction of a rapid diagnostic kit will project Malaysia onto the right path in the road of eliminating Hepatitis C by 2030 by tackling the disease at the point of care. This achievement should aspire the medical fraternity into the culture of clinical research in enhancing the nation's health.

With the continuous battle against the COVID-19 pandemic, the world has adopted digital approaches in healthcare to ensure effective and efficient service delivery. The acceptance of the MySejahtera solution in the public health strategies particularly in the digital contact tracing, vaccination program, and recently, home quarantine order as well as the normalization of outpatient clinical teleconsultations to reduce the risks of COVID-19 are propelling Malaysia towards achieving high digital adaptation in healthcare. We can seize the digital opportunities presented by the COVID-19 crisis to rethink and innovate our ways of delivering value-based healthcare for better patient outcomes.

I trust the conference will offer delegates the opportunity to exchange research ideas and share knowledge that can greatly benefit Malaysia as a leading destination for clinical research. On that note, I congratulate the Institute for Clinical Research and the Organizing Committee for gathering promising Malaysian researchers and renowned international speakers to the 14th NCCR.

I wish you all an enjoyable conference.
