The World of Tibetan Buddhism Tenzin Gyatso,1995 An

Introduction to Buddhism and Tantric Meditation His Holiness the XIVth Dalai Lama ,2015-01-01 The teachings of the Buddha can be summarised as dealing with conduct and view Conduct refers to the way we should behave which is essentially to be non violence The Buddha counseled us to help each other if we can and if we cannot at least to avoid doing one another harm View refers to the way we understand how things exist The Buddha explained that nothing exists of its own accord in isolation Everything exists in dependence on something else the result of a variety of causes and conditions His Holiness was requested to compose A Tantric Meditation to give an opportunity to people seriously interested in finding out about the practice of tantra the opportunity to do so without the necessity of receiving prior empowerment Consequently it includes a simple process of visualization recitation of the traditional seven branch rite recitation of mantras and dissolution of the visualised meditational deities into emptiness If it is performed with faith this meditation can be a source of great mental purification and merit but whether you do so or not is entirely up to the individual If the teachings of the Buddha are to help us make spiritual progress it is also most important that we familiarise ourselves with them regularly either by listening to them or by reading

A Brief History of the Relationship Between Confucianism, Daoism, and Buddhism Zhongjian Mou,2023-01-01 Chinese traditions of Confucianism Daoism and Buddhism have a profoundly philosophical dimension The three traditions are frequently referred to as three paths of moral teachings In this book Mou provides a clear account of the textual corpus that emerges to define each of these traditions and how this canonical axis was augmented by a continuing commentarial tradition as each generation reauthorized the written core for their own time and place In his careful exegesis Mou lays out the differences between the more religious reading of these traditions with their defining practices that punctuate the human journey through life and the more intellectual and philosophical treatment of the texts that has and continues to produce a first order culture of annotation that become integral to the traditions themselves At the center of the alternative religious experience reflected throughout the teachings of Confucianism Daoism and Buddhism is the project of personal cultivation as it comes to be expressed as robust growth in family and communal relations For Mou these three highly distinctive and yet complementary ways of thinking and living constitute a kind of moral ecology wherein each of them complements the others as they stand in service to a different dimension of the human need for an educated spirituality

Introduction to Buddhism His Holiness the 14th Dalai Lama, 2018-01-01 Engaging in bringing destruction to others is like breaking your own legs No one benefits Although your legs and hands are different in shape and have separate functions they belong to the same body The hands have to remove the pain of the legs If the countries of the east have a problem the western countries should extend help If there is a problem in the western countries the eastern countries should render assistance Both sides will benefit in the end Helping others is in fact helping yourself because your future is completely dependent on others Take for instance your Ladakhi society If your community is happy then every individual is happy If the community faces difficulties then every family and every person faces hard times If your family is in a good state then all of its members are happy Take a family of ten people If some of the family members become ill then the rest of the family members are beset with worry although their own bodies are perfectly healthy Being concerned only about your own physical and mental suffering and not about others is wrong If you possess intelligence you should know that even if the suffering of others is not directly causing you harm at present it might in the future Therefore people should realize that the happiness of others results in their own contentment Intelligence grows even greater with education However enhancing your intelligence by acquiring additional learning should make you more aware that your long term future happiness depends on society on your fellow human beings and on the
