become a minor point as compared to their sounds patterns A Tribute to New York City in the 1950's Mike Sardo, 2000

This book is a collection of contemporary and abstract poetry dealing with the life and daily happenings through the fifties. People, places, attitudes and New York City nostalgia are the subjects of this collection of poetry. The 50s in New York City had a profound impact on the life of Michael A J Sardo. Writing about this era wasn't too hard to pen as it was an exciting time, a sad time and a thought provoking time in this poet's life. The sounds of Sardo's writings vibrate with the hustle and bustle of New York City. The author expresses in verse the often overlooked minor details of the big city. He sees the beauty in trivial occurrences. He hears the musical rhythms in the sounds of New York City. From Greenwich Village he travels north toward the streets to mid town stopping along the way to do his shopping for ideas. Daytime and nighttime glamour of the greatest city in the world is what this contemporary poet is creating with his paper and pen canvas. His legal pads of various colors depicting his different moods are the medium of his excursions into the world of abstract and sometimes surrealistic poetry. It is the hope of Michael A J Sardo that New York City alive and vibrant will take over this work of contemporary poetry. Many of the poems in this book represent approaches to configurations of sounds. Often times in the abstract poetry of this book definitions of words become a minor point as compared to their sounds patterns.

Rochdale Village Peter Eisenstadt, 2011-08-15

From 1963 to 1965 roughly 6 000 families moved into Rochdale Village at the time the world's largest housing cooperative in southeastern Queens New York. The moderate income cooperative attracted families from a diverse background white and black to what was a predominantly black neighborhood. In its early years Rochdale was widely hailed as one of the few successful large scale efforts to create an integrated community in New York City or for that matter anywhere in the United States. Rochdale was built by the United Housing Foundation. Its president Abraham Kazan had been the major builder of low cost cooperative housing in New York City for decades. His partner in many of these ventures was Robert Moses. Their work together was a marriage of opposites. Kazan's utopian anarchist strain of social idealism with its roots in the early twentieth century Jewish labor movement combined with Moses's hardheaded no nonsense pragmatism. Peter Eisenstadt recounts the history of Rochdale Village's first years from the controversies over its planning to the civil rights demonstrations at its construction site in 1963 through the late 1970s tracing the rise and fall of integration in the cooperative. Today although Rochdale is no longer integrated it remains a successful and vibrant cooperative that is a testament to the ideals of its founders and the hard work of its residents. Rochdale's problems were a microcosm of those of the city as a whole troubled schools rising levels of crime fallout from the disastrous teachers strike of 1968 and generally heightened racial tensions. By the end of the 1970s few white families remained. Drawing on exhaustive archival research extensive interviews with the planners and residents and his own childhood experiences growing up in Rochdale Village Eisenstadt offers an insightful and engaging look at what it was like to live in Rochdale and explores the community's place in the postwar history of America's cities and in the still unfinished quests for racial equality and affordable urban housing.

Movie Comedians of the 1950s Wes D. Gehring, 2016-10-27 The 1950s were a transitional period for film comedians. The artistic suppression of the McCarthy era and the advent of television often resulted in a dumbing down of motion pictures. Cartoonist turned director Frank Tashlin contributed a funny but cartoonish effect through his work with comedians like Jerry Lewis and Bob Hope. A new vanguard of comedians appeared without stock comic garb or make up fresh faces not easily pigeonholed as merely comedians such as Tony Randall, Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis. Some traditional comedians like Charlie Chaplin, Red Skelton and Danny Kaye continued their shtick though with some evident tweaking. This book provides insight into a misunderstood decade of film history with an examination of the personality comedians. The talents of Dean Martin and Bob Hope are reappraised and the dumb blonde stereotype as applied to Judy Holliday and Marilyn Monroe is deconstructed.

The Letters of Robert Duncan and Denise Levertov Robert Edward Duncan, Robert J. Bertholf, Albert Gelpi, 2004 This volume presents the complete correspondence between two of the most important and influential American poets of the postwar period. The almost 500 letters range widely over the poetry scene and the issues that made the period so lively and productive. But what gives the exchange its special personal and literary resonance is the sense of spiritual affinity and shared conviction about the power of the visionary imagination. Duncan and Levertov explore these matters in rich detail until under the stress of dealing with the Vietnam War in poetry they discover deep seated differences in the religious and ethical convictions underlying their politics and poetic stance. The issues that drew them together and those that drove them apart create a powerful personal drama with far reaching historical and cultural significance. The editors have provided a critical Introduction, full notes, a chronology and a glossary of names.

The A to Z of African American Theater Anthony D. Hill, Douglas Q. Barnett, 2009-09-02 African American Theater is a vibrant and unique entity enriched by ancient Egyptian rituals, West African folklore and European theatrical practices. A continuum of African folk traditions, it combines storytelling, mythology, rituals, music, song and dance with ancestor worship from ancient times to the present. It afforded black artists a cultural gold mine to celebrate what it was like to be an African American in The New World. The A to Z of African American Theater celebrates nearly 200 years of black theater in the United States, identifying representative African American theater producing organizations and chronicling their contributions to the field from its birth in 1816 to the present. This is done through a chronology, an introductory essay, a bibliography and over 500 cross referenced dictionary entries on actors, directors, playwrights, plays, theater producing organizations, themes, locations and theater movements and awards.

Transforming the Screen, 1950-1959 Peter Lev, 2003 Covering a tumultuous period of the 1950s, this work explores the divorce of movie studios from their theater chains, the panic of the blacklist era, the explosive emergence of science fiction as the dominant genre and the rise of television and Hollywood's response with widescreen spectacles.
