What is Atrial Fibrillation?

Normally, your heart contracts and relaxes to a regular beat. In atrial fibrillation (also called AFib), the upper chambers of the heart (the atria) beat irregularly (quiver) instead of beating effectively to move blood into the ventricles. Because AFib allows blood to slow down or pool, it increases the risk of clotting, and therefore increases your risk of stroke.

Stroke Warning Signs

Stroke is caused when a blood clot forms and travels to the brain.

AFib allows blood to slow down or pool, increasing risk of clotting.

Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination

Sudden, severe headache with no known cause

Sudden trouble seeing in one or both eyes

Sudden confusion, trouble speaking or understanding

Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm, or leg, especially on one side of the body

What can you do?

- Take an active role in your health. Do this by having regular checkups with your healthcare professional.
- Work together to identify heart disease and stroke risk factors. If you are at risk, it is critical that you follow the treatment plan prescribed by your doctor.

"I have Atrial Fibrillation. By working with my doctor, I am managing my condition and therefore decreasing my risk for stroke. I have improved my diet and lifestyle and stick with my treatment plan. I refuse to be a statistic."
