Augmentative and Alternative Communication Filip Loncke, John Clibbens, Helen Arvidson, Lyle Lord, 1999-10-08 With contributions from leaders in their fields from across the world this book focuses on current AAC research and examines ways in which it contributes to a better general understanding of processes related to its use and implementation The book is divided into six sections with many topics including gestural and manual communication being discussed in more than one section

Augmentative and Alternative Communication Filip Loncke, 2020-10-09 Augmentative and Alternative Communication Models and Applications Second Edition describes augmentative and alternative communication AAC comprehensively and offers a framework for understanding how AAC intervention can be used in the process of communication This textbook is intended to serve as the primary text for graduate level courses in augmentative and alternative communication in speech language pathology programs It also serves as an essential resource for practicing clinicians AAC is used by an ever growing group of individuals of all ages each with their own personal and communication needs The book presents the various AAC interventions and teaches the prospective clinician which intervention may be effective depending on the needs condition and prognosis of the client The text details how communication is shaped by internal and external factors and how communication affects social functioning New to the Second Edition A revised introductory chapter reflecting recent changes in the field Thoroughly updated chapters on technology vocabulary and assessment Reorganization of the chapters for a more natural flow of information New and revised artwork throughout including images tables and charts New and expanded case studies covering different types of communicators their needs and AAC solutions Expanded coverage on the following topics The debate on core vocabulary and discussion of best practices Perspectives and views from AAC users Ethics in AAC service delivery Research issues

Literacy and Augmentative and Alternative Communication Martine Smith, 2021-11-15 The new demands of this computer and technology age have focused international attention on literacy levels on literacy development and literacy disorders Governments have launched programs to reduce literacy difficulties and support functional literacy for all In this context the needs of individuals with severe speech and physical impairments may seem relatively small and even unimportant However for this group of individuals in particular unlocking the literacy code opens up tremendous opportunities minimizing the disabling effects of their underlying speech and motor impairments and supporting participation in society Ironically however for a group for whom literacy is such an important achievement current studies suggest that achieving functional literacy skills is particularly challenging In order to read individuals with severe speech impairments must access a set of written symbols and decode them to abstract meaning just as anyone else must do They must convert underlying messages into an alternative external symbol format in order to write In order to become expert in both of these activities they must learn at least a certain core of knowledge about how the symbols and messages relate to each other Just as there are many ways to skin a chicken there are many possible ways to achieve mastery of reading and writing Although the essence of the task may remain the same for individuals with congenital speech impairments they may process the task or develop task mastery in ways that are quite different from speaking children who have no additional physical impairments Literacy and Augmentative and Alternative Communication focuses on individuals with combined physical and communication impairments who rely at least some of the time on aided communication It investigates the range of research and application issues relating to AAC and literacy primarily reading and writing skills from the emergent literacy stage up through adulthood use of reading for various vocational and leisure purposes It provides a balanced view of both the whole language as well as the more analytic approaches to reading instruction necessary for the development of reading skills

Augmentative and Alternative Communication for Children, Adolescents and Adults with Developmental Disorders Stephen von Tetzchner, Harald Martinsen, Kristine Stadskleiv, 2024-12-31 This book is about the possibilities and achievements of children adolescents and adults who have developmental disorders that make their development of speech difficult or very delayed and who therefore need to develop communication and language with other means than speech For some the difficulties are temporary in childhood others continue to communicate with alternative communication systems throughout adulthood This comprehensive and accessible volume offers guidance based on current knowledge about typical and atypical language development for all those supporting families and professionals involved with children adolescents and adults who may benefit from using augmentative and alternative communication AAC systems The text covers all major issues and gives a thorough introduction to factors that are important when choosing communication systems vocabularies of manual signs and graphic symbols It guides the reader in assessment strategies adaptation of the language environment and the principles for teaching comprehension and use of AAC sentence formation and conversational skills to individuals with different disabilities including motor disabilities intellectual disabilities autism spectrum disorders and developmental language disorders The volume also addresses the influence of AAC on speech development and the use of AAC to promote participation in various activities including social media and to reduce challenging behaviour The book will be essential reading for students and practising psychologists speech and language therapists special educators teachers physiotherapists and occupational therapists The accessible guidance will also be helpful for the families of children adolescents and adults who use augmentative and alternative communication

The Handbook of Psycholinguistic and Cognitive Processes Jacqueline Guendouzi, Filip Loncke, Mandy J. Williams, 2011 This book includes a basic overview of areas of cognition and language processing relevant to the field of communication disorders and provides examples of theoretical approaches to problems and issues in communication disorders Future Interaction Design A. Pirhonen, H. Isomäki, C. Roast, P. Saariluoma, 2005-12-06 In 1969 Herbert Simon wrote a book The Science of the Artificial in which he argued that cognitive science should have its area of application in the design of devices. He proposed the foundation of a science of the artificial related with cognitive science in the sense in which we have traditionally understood the relationship between the engineering disciplines and the basic sciences. Such a science has been called cognitive ergonomics or cognitive engineering. Norman 1986 Simon's cognitive ergonomics 1969 would be independent of cognitive science its basic science although both would be closely related. Cognitive science would contribute knowledge on human cognitive processes and cognitive ergonomics would contribute concrete problems of design that should be solved in the context of the creation of devices. Norman 1986 the author that coined the term cognitive engineering conceived it as an applied cognitive science where the knowledge of cognitive science is combined with that of engineering to solve design problems. According to Norman its objectives would be 1 to understand the fundamental principles of human actions important for the development of the engineering of design principles and 2 to build systems that are pleasant in their use.

Who's Afraid of AAC? Alison Battye, 2017-08-04 Who's Afraid of AAC is a clear and concise guide to Augmentative and Alternative Communication AAC in the UK and will be an essential resource for all Speech and Language Therapists, educators, parents and carers supporting children with non verbal communication.
