Black Politics in Transition Candis Watts Smith, Christina Greer, 2018-10-17 Black Politics in Transition considers the impact of three transformative forces immigration suburbanization and gentrification on Black politics today Demographic changes resulting from immigration and ethnic blending are dramatically affecting the character and identity of Black populations throughout the US Black Americans are becoming more ethnically diverse at the same time that they are sharing space with newcomers from near and far In addition the movement of Black populations out of the cities to which they migrated a generation ago a reverse migration to the American South in some cases and in other cases a movement from cities to suburbs shifts the locus of Black politics At the same time middle class and white populations are returning to cities displacing low income Blacks and immigrants alike in a renewal of gentrification All this makes for an important laboratory of discovery among social scientists including the diverse range of authors represented here Drawing on a wide array of disciplinary perspectives and methodological strategies original chapters analyze the geography of opportunity for Black Americans and Black politics in accessible jargon free language Moving beyond the Black white binary this book explores the tri part relationship among Blacks whites and Latinos as well Some of the most important developments in Black politics are happening at state and local levels today and this book captures that for students scholars and citizens engaged in this dynamic milieu

The Caribbeanization of Black Politics Sharon D. Wright Austin, 2018-03-01 Examines the continuing ethnic diversification of black America and its impact on black political empowerment In The Caribbeanization of Black Politics Sharon D Wright Austin explores the impact of ethnic diversification of African American communities on the prospects for black political empowerment Focusing on Boston Chicago Miami and New York City cities that for the last several years have experienced an influx of black immigrants she surveyed more than two thousand African Americans Cape Verdeans Haitians and West Indians Although many studies conclude that African American group consciousness causes them to participate in politics at higher rates when socioeconomic status is controlled for Wright Austin analyzes whether this is true for other black groups She assesses the current political incorporation of these groups by looking at data on public officeholders and by examining political coalitions and conflicts among the groups and she also discusses the possible future of black political development in these cities The greatest contribution of this book is its analysis of black ethnics in a diverse geographic space Moving beyond the New York City lens to Boston Chicago and Miami is something that has never been done in political science This book is incredibly important Christina M Greer author of Black Ethnics Race Immigration and the Pursuit of the American Dream

Politics, Praxis, And Culture Georgia Anne Persons, 2005-01-01 The National Political Science Review is the official publication of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists This new volume Contemporary Patterns of Politics Praxis and Culture reflects major research focuses across religion race gender culture and of course politics Themes that engage a community of scholars also engage them in praxis as individual citizens and practitioners in a democratic society and collectively as member participants in a changing culture Two themes religion and culture are relatively new areas of intellectual curiosity for political scientists Articles in this volume extend the beachheads already established by African American political scientists in studies that gauge the significance and influence of religion in both individual and group behavior They chart religion's inevitable move onto the center stage of U S public affairs The study of culture has essentially languished for almost a generation within political science especially with regard to the study of American politics and society During this time the emphasis has also shifted significantly from an almost exclusive focus on civic culture to an expanding focus on the broad expanse of popular culture in the contemporary period Culture is the crucible within which politics race religion and gender both foment and ferment and artistic products of the culture are manifestations and mirrors of how we envision and construct a changing reality Issues of race religion gender and culture are all dimensions of individual and group identity The dynamics of changing individual and group identities change the underlying cultural canvas against which identity is displayed and politics is acted out The concept of praxis is relatively new to the lexicon of political science However engagement in the practice of politics is not a new idea for African American social scientists Indeed particularly for this group and clearly for many others scholarship influences praxis and praxis influences scholarship This volume will be of particular interest to ethnic studies specialists African American studies scholars political scientists historians and sociologists Georgia A Persons is professor of political science in the School of Public Policy at Georgia Institute of Technology where she also directs the Center for the Study of Social Change
