Critical seventies Martien de Vletter, 2004 There is no period in the history of the Netherlands which excites such emotion resistance or aversion as the decade of the 1970s Following in the wake of the democratization wave of 1968 some regard the 1970s as a period when pluralism was possible and desirable at all levels For others the crowning moment of 1968 degenerated into a quagmire of public consultation and a culture of always inconclusive committee meetings The 70s were either hip and groundbreaking or dogmatic and rigid The architecture of the time which headed off in pursuit of new definitions and forms is similarly divisive Though a number of architectural trajectories were driven by a devoted social engagement and a profound belief in architecture as a means of molding society the sheer plethora of movements failed to generate a single and unanimous alternative resulting instead in polarization and pluralism The Critical Years focuses on architecture urban planning and spatial planning from 1968 to 1982 Specific projects from the period are discussed and extensively documented on the basis of six themes and an introductory essay considers the context in which building and planning changed so radically With the imminent demolition and renovation of much of the infrastructure and architecture of the 1970s this book is a critical and timely document of one of the most important periods for architecture in the Netherlands

a heterogenous collection of buildings and designs which are often based on equally differing approaches Apart from the internationally renowned masterpieces by architects like Berlage Oud Duiker Van Eyck and Koolhaas this book includes numerous lesser known buildings which underline the versatility and quality of Dutch architecture
