A Vision For Today John Egglestons Writings On Education:

A Vision for Today John Eggleston, 2004 John Eggleston's influence on education is still felt today. In his radical research project for the Schools Council in the 1970s he changed the school subject of Craft shaping it with Design and Technology. This tribute to his life and work brings together some of his most apposite writings Here, There and Everywhere Robin Richardson, 2004. At the heart of this book is an exploration of each subject or curriculum area, the general principles, notes on practice and opportunities and questions for review and development. Students at a rural secondary school set up a Web site in collaboration with students at a multiethnic school some 25 miles away. They wanted to explore differences and similarities between their schools and to share reports and reflections about the projects they were doing jointly. They called the site Here There and Everywhere after the Beatles song. The title also captures the spirit and concerns of this handbook exploring how schools can combat racism and how issues of belonging, identity and equality can be here, there and everywhere in every school. A piece of forum theatre, Sticks Stones and Macpherson introduces the book. The overarching themes and big ideas that should permeate every curriculum subject and all aspects of the hidden curriculum in the school are discussed. The discussions and examples are consistent with but frequently go further than statutory requirements and expectations. Training exercises and materials for staff discussion provide guidance on dealing with racist incidents and finally threads from the book are drawn together to support the creation and development of formal school policies. The book draws extensively on work developed in Derbyshire. It has been compiled and edited for Derbyshire Advisory and Inspection Service by Robin Richardson, a director of the Insted consultancy. He and Insted colleague Angela Wood are the authors of The Achievement of British Pakistani Learners. Debates in Design and Technology Education Gwyneth Owen-Jackson, 2013-08-21. Design and Technology has long held a controversial place on the school curriculum with some arguing that it shouldn't be there at all. This book presents and questions considered arguments and judgements and explores the major issues that all D T teachers encounter in their daily professional lives. In exploring some of the key debates it encourages critical reflection and aims to stimulate both novice and experienced teachers to think more deeply about their practice and link research and evidence to what they have observed in schools. Written by expert design and technology education professionals, chapters tackle established and contemporary issues enabling you to reach informed judgements and argue your point of view with deeper theoretical knowledge and understanding. Debates covered include: What is the purpose of design and technology? Is it a vocational or academic subject? What is the place of design and technology within the STEM agenda? What knowledge and skills do teachers really need? What does the design and technology gender divide mean for schools and pupils? Is it a creative subject? What is the future for design and technology? With its combination of expert opinion and fresh insight, Debates in Design and Technology Education is the ideal companion for any student or practising teacher engaged in initial training, continuing professional development or Masters level study.
