Building The Nineteenth Century:

Building the Nineteenth Century Tom Frank Peters,1996 The Sayn Foundry in Bendorf a German town on the Rhine near the Dutch border is a fascinating example of complex technological thinking Although the structural detailing is typical of its period 1830 Prussian engineer and iron founder Karl Ludwig Althaus used and varied the many architectural and engineering models at hand in a sophisticated and complex building with structural elements that can be read as advertisements machine parts religious forms or simply as building elements The foundry which is still standing is just one of the many projects Peters examines in this broad synthesis of nineteenth century technological thought and methods of design that form the basis of the modern built world Through such examples he traces the growth of technological thinking as one of our culture s chief modes of thought and establishes its primacy over other forms such as scientific or humanistic thinking as the major component of building design American Building Art ,1960 American Building Carl W. American Building Art Carl W. Condit,2003-01-01 Sustainable Architectures Simon Guy,Steven A. Moore,2005 As buildings are responsible for fifty per cent of CO2 emissions their design has become the focus of intense technical scrutiny Knowing how to build more technically efficient or ecologically responsible buildings and being able to assemble the social resources to do so requires different forms of knowledge and practice There is wide contestation over the optimal pathways to greener buildings design and great diversity in practices of sustainable architecture This volume brings together leading researchers from across the European Union and North America both to illustrate the diversity of practice and to provide a critical commentary on this key debate The reader is provided with an introduction to competing perspectives on the sustainable architecture debate international exemplars of differing practice and an overview of new theoretical and methodological resources for understanding and meeting the conceptual social and technical challenges of sustainable architecture Building Modern Antiquity Georgia Giannakopoulou,2024-11-29 This book considers post 19th century

Athens as a unique instance of a secret side of metropolitan capitalism With a focus on modern antiquity as the hidden element of the dialectic between the past and the present it suggests that the sociological study of one of the great European capital cities a city not intended as a modern capital and its architectural representations may expose part of the veiled processes of the reconstruction of the past thus shedding light on the abuse of antiquity for the celebration of European capitalist metropolitan modernity From the glorious white marble cityscape of the 19th century that aimed at re enchanting metropolitan modernity to the inglorious grey reinforced concrete 21st century metropolis modern Athens exposes the battle between the modern and a modern image of antiquity a false socially constructed historiography born of the dialectics between the ancient and the modern the new and the old collective memory and collective forgetting As such The Building of a Modern Antiquity will appeal to scholars of sociology with interests in social and critical theory urban studies sociology of architecture and visual sociology Constructing Chicago Daniel M.
