Before Revelation The Boundaries Of Muslim Moral Thought:

Before Revelation A. Kevin Reinhart, 1995-01-01 Studies the development of Muslim jurisprudential and theological thought by analyzing the dispute that raged from the ninth to the nineteenth century over the assessment of acts that took place before the Qur'anic Revelation

The Barāhima's Dilemma Elizabeth G. Price, 2024-04-22 When debating the need for prophets Muslim theologians frequently cited an objection from a group called the Bar hima either a prophet conveys what is in accordance with reason so they would be superfluous or a prophet conveys what is contrary to reason so they would be rejected The Bar hima did not recognise prophecy or revelation because they claimed that reason alone could guide them on the right path But who were these Bar hima exactly Were they Brahmans as their title would suggest And how did they become associated with this highly incisive objection to prophecy This book traces the genealogy of the Bar hima and explores their profound impact on the evolution of Islamic theology It also charts the pivotal role that the Kitāb al Zumurrud played in disseminating the Bar hima's critiques and in facilitating an epistemological turn in the wider discourse on prophecy nubuwwa When faced with the Bar hima theologians were not only pressed to explain why rational agents required the input of revelation but to also identify an epistemic gap that only a prophet could fill A debate about whether humans required prophets thus evolved into a debate about what humans could and could not know by their own means
