Freezing Flowers

Freezing Flowers is a self-concept project exploring one of the most traditional food genres. I shot the photographs and did food photography.

There have been experiments on through the history as part of various rituals of religious having to do with death and resurrection in the 18th-19th.

I asked to shoot the photos about water and flowers in the anticipation of the last moments and death, and in the same time giving a more contemporary approach, giving the flowers a more modern look and feeling.
