Performing arts centers PACs are an integral part of the cultural and creative industries significantly influencing the cultural social and economic vitality of communities around the world Virtually all PACs are community based and serve the public interest whether structured as a public nonprofit for profit or hybrid entity However there is a lack of knowledge about the important community role of performing arts centers especially those that mainly host and present work produced by other arts organizations This gap is startling given the ubiquitous presence of PACs in urban centers small communities as well as colleges and universities This co edited reference book provides valuable information at the intersection of theory and practice in the professional field of executive leadership of performing arts centers Drawing on the expertise of leading academics consultants and executives this book focuses on institutions and practices in the United States and is contextualized within additional fields such as cultural planning urban revitalization and economic development Performing Arts Center Management aims to provide valuable theoretical conceptual empirical and practice based information to current and future leaders in creative and cultural industries management It serves as a unique reference for researchers university students civic leaders urban planners public venue managers and arts administrators aspiring to improve or advance their work in successfully managing performing arts centers

Building for the Arts Peter Frumkin, Ana Kolendo, 2014-03-06

Over the past two decades the arts in America have experienced an unprecedented building boom with more than sixteen billion dollars directed to the building expansion and renovation of museums theaters symphony halls opera houses and centers for the visual and performing arts Among the projects that emerged from the boom were many brilliant successes Others like the striking addition of the Quadracci Pavilion to the Milwaukee Art Museum brought international renown but also tens of millions of dollars of off budget debt while offering scarce additional benefit to the arts and embodying the cultural sector's worst fears that the arts themselves were being displaced by the big status driven architecture projects built to contain them With Building for the Arts Peter Frumkin and Ana Kolendo explore how artistic vision funding partnerships and institutional culture work together or fail to throughout the process of major cultural construction projects Drawing on detailed case studies and in depth interviews at museums and other cultural institutions varying in size and funding arrangements including the Art Institute of Chicago Atlanta Opera and AT T Performing Arts Center in Dallas Frumkin and Kolendo analyze the decision making considerations and challenges and identify four factors whose alignment characterizes the most successful and sustainable of the projects discussed institutional requirements capacity of the institution to manage the project while maintaining ongoing operations community interest and support and sufficient sources of funding How and whether these factors are strategically aligned in the design and execution of a building initiative the authors argue can lead an organization to either thrive or fail The book closes with an analysis of specific tactics that can enhance the chances of a project's success A practical guide grounded in the latest scholarship on nonprofit strategy and governance Building for the Arts will be an invaluable resource for professional arts staff and management trustees of arts organizations development professionals and donors as well as those who study and seek to understand them
