

The book cover features a painting of two men on a dark, rocky outcrop. One man stands on the left, operating a surveying instrument on a tripod, with a large red sphere nearby. The other man sits on the right, looking out over a vast, hazy landscape of rolling hills and mountains under a pale sky. The title and author's name are printed in white serif font over the lower half of the image.

Ryan, 2009-12-18 For many the dawn of the twentieth century ushered in an era where the world map had few if any blank spaces left to discover The age of exploration was supposedly dead New Spaces of Exploration challenges this assumption Focusing specifically on exploration in the twentieth century the authors demonstrate how new technologies and changing geopolitical configurations have ensured that exploration has remained a key feature of our rapidly globalizing world Ranging widely in their geographical focus from the Europe and Asia to Australia and from the polar regions to outer space they demonstrate the increasing diversity of modern exploration and reveal the continuing political military industrial and cultural motivations at play The result is a major contribution to our understanding of the significance of exploration in the twentieth century Contributors include E Baigent C Collis K Dodds F Driver M Godwin J Hill F Korsmo F MacDonald S Naylor J Ryan N Thomas and K Yusoff

Shopping All the Way to the Woods Rachel S. Gross, 2024-03-26 A fascinating history of the profitable paradox of the American outdoor experience visiting nature first requires shopping No escape to nature is complete without a trip to an outdoor recreational store or a browse through online offerings This is the irony of the American outdoor experience visiting wild spaces supposedly untouched by capitalism first requires shopping With consumers spending billions of dollars on clothing and equipment each year as they seek out nature the American outdoor sector grew over the past 150 years from a small collection of outfitters to an industry contributing more than 2 percent of the nation's economic output Rachel S Gross argues that this success was predicated not just on creating functional equipment but also on selling an authentic anticommmercial outdoor identity In other words shopping for the woods was also about being or becoming the right kind of person Demonstrating that outdoor culture is commercial culture Gross examines Americans journey toward outdoor expertise by tracing the development of the nascent outdoor goods industry the influence of World War II on its growth and the boom years of outdoor businesses
