Braindance What New Findings Reveal About Human Origins And Brain Evolution:

Human Origins 101 Holly M. Dunsworth, 2007-08-30 What should the average person know about science Because science is so central to life in the 21st century science educators and other leaders of the scientific community believe that it is essential that everyone understand the basic concepts of the most vital and far reaching disciplines Human Origins 101 does exactly that This accessible volume provides readers whether students new to the field or just interested members of the lay public with the essential ideas of the origins of humans using a minimum of jargon and mathematics Concepts are introduced in a progressive order so that more complicated ideas build on simpler ones and each is discussed in small bite sized segments so that they can be more easily understood Human Origins 101 enables students and the general public to understand the basic concepts underlying our knowledge of our evolution as a species This small volume covers A brief history of paleoanthropology and the discovery of human s place in nature Evolution and the Origin of Life Clues to human origins from genetics The fossil and archaeological records The distinctive traits that makes us human The diversity of modern humans With a bibliography glossary and discussion of hoaxes fringe theories and hot button issues Human Origins 101 provides the perfect starting point for anyone wishing to understand how scientists know how humans evolved

Neuropsychology of Art Dahlia W. Zaidel, 2013-04-15 The significance of art in human existence has long been a source of puzzlement fascination and mystery In Neuropsychology of Art Dahlia W Zaidel explores the brain regions and neuronal systems that support artistic creativity talent and appreciation Both the visual and musical arts are discussed against a neurological background Evidence from the latest relevant brain research is presented and critically examined in an attempt to clarify the brain art relationship language processing and visuo spatial perception The consequences of perceptual problems in famous artists along with data from autistic savants and established artists with brain damage as a result of unilateral stroke dementia or other neurological conditions are brought into consideration and the effects of damage to specific regions of the brain explored A major compilation of rare cases of artists with brain damage is provided and the cognitive abilities required for the neuropsychology of art reviewed This book draws on interdisciplinary principles from the biology of art brain evolution anthropology and the cinema through to the question of beauty language perception and hemispheric specialization It will be of interest to advanced students in neuro psychology neuroscience and neurology to clinicians and all researchers and scholars interested in the workings of the human brain Almost O.K. Federico

Sanchez, 2008-04-07 Almost O K presents an honest biographical recounting of the life and death of the authors son from the authors perspective and of his personal recovery from such tragedy He includes a review of the vocabulary and diagnostic tools used by psychiatrists to diagnose mental illnesses focusing on depression and schizophrenia The author also tells the story of his research to find a scientific theory of how the brain works and how he was able to put together a comprehensive explanation of suicide along with recommendations to reduce the rate of suicide Information and Living Systems

George Terzis, Robert Arp, 2011 The informational nature of biological organization at levels from the genetic and epigenetic to the cognitive and linguistic Information shapes biological organization in fundamental ways and at every organizational level Because organisms use information including DNA codes gene expression and chemical signaling to construct maintain repair and replicate themselves it would seem only natural to use information related ideas in our attempts to understand the general nature of living systems the causality by which they operate the difference between living and inanimate matter and the emergence in some biological species of cognition emotion and language And yet philosophers and scientists have been slow to do so This volume fills that gap Information and Living Systems offers a collection of original chapters in which scientists and philosophers discuss the informational nature of biological organization at levels ranging from the genetic to the cognitive and linguistic The chapters examine not only familiar information related ideas intrinsic to the biological sciences but also broader information theoretic perspectives used to interpret their significance The contributors represent a range of disciplines including anthropology biology chemistry cognitive science information theory philosophy psychology and systems theory thus demonstrating the deeply interdisciplinary nature of the volume's bioinformational theme

Natural History, 1993 Evolution Michael Ruse, Joseph Travis, 2009-02-28 Spanning evolutionary science from its inception to its latest findings from discoveries and data to philosophy and history this book is the most complete authoritative and inviting one volume introduction to evolutionary biology available Clear informative and comprehensive in scope Evolution opens with a series of major essays dealing with the history and philosophy of evolutionary biology with major empirical and theoretical questions in the science from speciation to adaptation from paleontology to evolutionary development evo devo and concluding with essays on the social and political significance of evolutionary biology today A second encyclopedic section travels the spectrum of topics in evolution with concise informative and accessible entries on individuals from Aristotle and Linnaeus to Louis Leakey and Jean Lamarck from T H Huxley and E O Wilson to Joseph Felsenstein and Motoo Kimura and on subjects from altruism and amphibians to evolutionary psychology and Piltdown Man to the Scopes trial and social Darwinism Readers will find the latest word on the history and philosophy of evolution the nuances of the science itself and the intricate interplay among evolutionary study religion philosophy and society Appearing at the beginning of the Darwin Year of 2009 the 200th anniversary of the birth of Charles Darwin and the 150th anniversary of the publication of the Origin of Species this volume is a fitting tribute to the science Darwin set in motion The Well-Dressed Ape Hannah Holmes, 2009-01-20 DID YOU KNOW THAT we have more hair follicles than a chimpanzee a male boxer in top condition can punch with the force of a thirteen pound mallet swung at twenty miles an hour the best human endurance runners can outlast a horse one odor above all is sexually stimulating to the human male cinnamon buns our home building skills compare nicely with those of the bagworm With dry wit and penetrating insight science journalist Hannah Holmes casts the eye of a trained researcher and reporter on herself And on our whole species She compares the biology and behavior of humans with that of other creatures exploring how the human animal fits into the natural world Holmes also reveals the ways in which Homo sapiens stands apart from other mammals and all other animals in ways that are alternately admirable and devastating Deftly mixing personal stories with the latest scientific research Hannah Holmes has fashioned an engaging field guide to that oddest and most fascinating of primates ourselves Academic American Encyclopedia, 1998 A twenty one volume set of encyclopedias providing an alphabetical listing of information on a variety of topics

Modern Humans John F. Hoffecker, 2017-10-31 Modern Humans is a vivid account of the most recent and perhaps the most important phase of human evolution the appearance of anatomically modern people Homo sapiens in Africa less than half a million years ago and their later spread throughout the world Leaving no stone unturned John F Hoffecker demonstrates that Homo sapiens represents a major transition in the evolution of living systems in terms of fundamental changes in the role of non genetic information Modern Humans synthesizes recent findings from genetics including the rapidly growing body of ancient DNA the human fossil record and archaeology relating to the African origin and global dispersal of anatomically modern people Hoffecker places humans in the broad context of the evolution of life emphasizing the critical role of genetic and non genetic forms of information in living systems as well as how changes in the storage transmission and translation of information underlie major transitions in evolution He also draws on information and complexity theory to explain the emergence of Homo sapiens in Africa several hundred thousand years ago and the rapid and unprecedented spread of our species into a variety of environments in Australia and Eurasia including the Arctic and Beringia beginning between 75 000 and 60 000 years ago This magisterial work will appeal to all with an interest in the ever fascinating field of human evolution Feeding the Fire Mark Eberhart, 2007-05-08 From the first spark created by human hands thousands of years ago mankind has grown dependent on nature s vast stores of energy to build explore and experiment Our expanding knowledge and technologies have come from the felling of forests to the harnessing of wind and water from the burning of coal and oil to tapping the energy of the atom Energy does more than heat our homes and fill our gas tanks it fuels our imaginations Our future is inextricably linked to energy and in this groundbreaking book Mark Eberhart examines our historic quest for power and tackles the brutal realization that there are limits to the energy Earth can provide In Western society we treat energy as a given the background noise of modern life But as worldwide energy demand grows supplies are at best holding steady and at worst shrinking The implications of our dependence are enormous And while there is evidence that great cultures of the past the Maya Anasazi Easter Islanders collapsed when their energy resources were exhausted Eberhart argues that we have the responsibility and the ability to develop renewable energy sources now Eberhart leads us on a tour through the history of energy how it was formed and how it evolved and reveals how we became energy dependent creatures With an unblinking eye he takes a close look at the consequences of our energy appetite and most important imagines a secure energy future that we can all play a part in achieving Enlightening bold and practical Feeding the Fire weaves together history science and current affairs to create an important and compelling thesis about humanity's energy needs and draws a hard line on the imperative need to avert the catastrophe that looms if we continue on our present course
