

Everyone knows how wonderful it is to have a birthday. The excitement of opening the presents, the rustle of paper and the thrill of the cards brought by the postman. A birthday is something special, different from Christmas, when all the presents are specially for you.

It was Peter's birthday and he was five years old. He was having a very exciting birthday with some wonderful presents. His mother and father had given him a wonderful model castle, and his grandfather had promised he would make him some soldiers.

So, he opened the big box addressed to him in grandfather's handwriting. There were twenty-five toy soldiers, all beautifully made and painted. He picked up his one, then another and when he had looked at all the soldiers in a long time on the table. When he took the last one from the box he was that, which perfect in every other way, the toy soldier only had one leg. Grandfather had run out of tin!
