Contemporary Painting in New Zealand Michael Dunn, 1996 This new book explores the different perspectives that have helped shape the current directions in New Zealand painting including neo expressionism recent forms of abstraction and colour painting the new figuration and the bi cultural contribution of contemporary Maori painting Professor Dunn provides an introductory overview of the contemporary art scene in New Zealand and follows it with profiles of both established painters and exciting younger artists who are now making their mark in different ways The book makes particular mention of the work of Maori painters who address important social issues in their art      New Zealand Women Artists Anne Kirker, 1993 The identities of serious women artists have too often been omitted from historical accounts and their achievements have been misunderstood and undervalued By comparison their male counterparts have invariably been accorded most attention and given the status of innovators      New Zealand Books in Print, 1982      An Introduction to New Zealand Painting, 1839-1980 Gordon H. Brown, Hamish Keith, 1982 First ed published 1969 under title An introduction to New Zealand painting 1839 1967 Sources p 222 227      The French and the Maori John Dunmore, 1992      Fomison Tony Fomison, 1994 This volume was published on the occasion of the exhibition in 1994 at the Wellington City Gallery There are essays by Ian Wedde Simon During Marianna Torgovnick and Peter Brunt Sulu ape Paulo II provides an article about Samoan tattooing and there is an interview with Fuimaono Tuiasau who was tattooed with Fomison The catalogue reproduces the 104 works from the exhibition several in colour and provides notes about the exhibits There is a supplementary catalogue listing all known works in alphabetical order Two of Fomison's articles are reprinted and a chronology of Fomison's life and shows is included      Edith Collier Joanne Drayton, 1999 Published with the assistance of the Edith Collier Trust Sarjeant Art Gallery and Whanganui Regional Community Polytechnic Edith Collier's contribution to New Zealand art as an innovator modernist and expatriate painter placed her in a most distinguished group but her achievements have been eclipsed by the very company she kept such as Frances Hodgkins and Margaret Preston This book and the travelling exhibition it accompanies sets the record straight After a thorough although conservative art education at the Technical School in Wanganui Edith Collier left New Zealand in 1913 for St John's Wood Art School in London She was then aged 27 Rapidly disillusioned and feeling marginalised as an expatriate woman painter she became more influenced by other expatriates in London and was to enjoy greater success through exhibiting with the Society of Women Artists and Women's International Art Club venues outside the art establishment and became a significant Modernist painter Collier returned to New Zealand in 1922 as an experienced artist with innovative ideas but as a spinster in provincial Wanganui received harsh treatment including what Drayton describes as savage critical assessment and negative response from her own community In a well known incident on which Drayton casts a new perspective her father burned many of her finest paintings She died in 1964

Trevor Moffitt Chris Ronayne, 2006 Trevor Moffitt is a detailed and fascinating illustrated biography of a unique and successful New Zealand painter Born in 1936 to a poor Southland family where of necessity a hunter gatherer mentality prevailed young Trevor set his mind on art school and becoming an artist There were many hurdles to overcome His father told him to leave school at age fifteen and when Trevor refused his father didn't speak to him for years and left him to finance his own schooling clothing and other necessities He succeeded in attending the art school at Ilam and wanted to paint New Zealand but in his own way where people were as important as the landscape But to be producing figurative and narrative work when all around him were creating international modernism was considered by some to be missing the point Furthermore his bold direct expressionist style was considered almost primitive and this led to slow recognition of his talent Trevor Moffitt supported his family through the difficult early years by teaching secondary school art where he eventually headed a large department at Burnside High School in Christchurch and proved to be an excellent administrator While still not achieving wide acclaim he resigned from teaching in the 1980s and stuck doggedly to his task Trevor Moffitt became arguably New Zealand's leading narrative painter producing series such as the Gold Miners Mackenzie My Father's Life Stanley Graham and Hokonui Moonshine Very much a humanist he completed three Human Condition series He died in April 2006
