STUDIES

This work contains the life stories and photographs of many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander men and women who have made great contributions to their people and their country. The story of Aboriginal Australia could not be told without recognising their achievements. Readers of this work should be aware that in some Aboriginal communities, seeing the names and photographs of dead people may cause sadness and distress, particularly to relatives of those people. Before using this work in such communities, readers should establish what the wishes of senior community members are and take their advice on procedures and safeguards to be adopted.
