Australian Television:

Australian Television Culture Tom O'Regan, 2020-07-24 Australian television has been transformed over the past decade. Cross media ownership and audience reach regulations redrew the map and business culture of television leading business entrepreneurs acquired television stations and then sold them in the bust of the late 1980s and new television services were developed for non English speaking and Aboriginal viewers. Australian Television Culture is the first book to offer a comprehensive analysis of the fundamental changes of this period. It is also the first to offer a substantial treatment of the significance of multiculturalism and Aboriginal initiatives in television. Tracing the links between local regional national and international television services Tom O'Regan builds a picture of Australian television. He argues that we are not just an outpost of the US networks and that we have a distinct television culture of our own a truly innovative book. The author ambitiously strives for a large scale synthesis of policy program analysis history politics international influences and the Australian television system's place in the world. Associate Professor Stuart Cunningham Queensland University of Technology

Contemporary Australian Television Stuart Cunningham, Toby Miller, David Rowe, 1994 This book provides the first up to date introduction to the shape and style of Australian television in the 1980s 1990s and beyond. The authors use their expertise in cultural and media studies to take apart the medium in terms of text genre audience nation culture policy industry and postmodernity. Trends and developments that are taking Australian television into the future such as the increasingly international orientation of the local industry and new services like pay TV community TV and ABC satellite TV are also examined in depth.

Creating Australian Television Drama Susan Lever, 2020-11-13 Television drama has been the dominant form of popular storytelling for more than sixty years shaping the imaginations of millions of people. This book surveys the careers of the central creators of those stories for Australian television the writers who learnt how to work in a new medium adapting to its constraints and exploring its creative possibilities. Informed by interviews with many writers it describes the establishment of Australian television drama production observing the way writers grasped the creative and business opportunities that television presented. It examines the development of Australian versions of the major television genres the sitcom the police drama the historical series docudrama and social drama presenting a canon of significant Australian television drama productions that deserve to be remembered. It offers an account of the emergence of work by Indigenous writers for television and it argues for the consideration of television drama alongside histories of Australian film and stage drama.
