The Troubled Empire Timothy Brook, 2013-03-11 The Mongol takeover in the 1270s changed the course of Chinese history The Confucian empire a millennium and a half in the making was suddenly thrust under foreign occupation What China had been before its reunification as the Yuan dynasty in 1279 was no longer what it would be in the future Four centuries later another wave of steppe invaders would replace the Ming dynasty with yet another foreign occupation The Troubled Empire explores what happened to China between these two dramatic invasions If anything defined the complex dynamics of this period it was changes in the weather Asia like Europe experienced a Little Ice Age and as temperatures fell in the thirteenth century Kublai Khan moved south into China His Yuan dynasty collapsed in less than a century but Mongol values lived on in Ming institutions A second blast of cold in the 1630s combined with drought was more than the dynasty could stand and the Ming fell to Manchu invaders Against this background the first coherent ecological history of China in this period Timothy Brook explores the growth of autocracy social complexity and commercialization paying special attention to China's incorporation into the larger South China Sea economy These changes not only shaped what China would become but contributed to the formation of the early modern world

Twelfth International Diatom Symposium Herman van Dam, 2013-06-29 The Twelfth International Diatom Symposium stressed how diatoms can be used to assess the human impact on natural waters without neglecting other important fields of research As the frustules of many diatom species are relatively resistant to dissolution they are preserved in freshwater and marine sediments and provide a record of past environments on earth In past decades they have been successfully used to reconstruct changes in water bodies evoked by changes in salinity acidification and eutrophication In the last few years diatom inferred predictions of environmental variables have become much more quantitative In the most recent research reports the strong separation between palaeolimnological and neolimnological diatom research is fading as palaeolimnologists are increasingly using modern calibration sets to infer past states of the environment This quantitative approach is also very suitable for prediction of future changes in the biota of surface waters Also ecological changes due to climatic modification have been investigated more thoroughly recently A very important new research topic is the occurrence of toxic diatoms particularly along the coasts of North America These proceedings are intended to be a balanced view of such modern developments in diatom research They should also be of interest to non specialists in diatoms who can use the results of diatom research as a tool in a more general taxonomic ecological and geological context
