

Alfred Currier Impasto

Alice Maria Dougan, Margaret Furlong

Alfred Currier Impasto:

Alfred Currier Ted Lindberg, E. Theodore Lindberg, 2003 This lively yet thoughtful sketch of Alfred Currier's evolution as an artist focuses on his career during the past decade after he came to Skagit County in Washington State from the Midwest in 1992. Currier b. 1943 regards this decade as his professional coming of age, the crystallization of a personal style and technique. His recurrent theme is the rendering of the Skagit Delta, particularly the blossoming of its famous tulip fields and the people that work them. Paintings of tulip iris and daffodil fields dominate, but there are everyday scenes of Anacortes and Skagit County backyards, lanes, work areas, homesteads, and forays into figure studies, always locked into satisfying airtight compositions. He also paints the occasional skyscape or seascape, addressing a radically different sense of fathomless space. Ted Lindberg has been an art museum curator and administrator at the Vancouver Art Gallery, Emily Carr Institute of Art and Design, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, and California College of Arts and Crafts. He lives in Sooke, British Columbia, on Vancouver Island.
