

A Note by the Translator of All Men Are Brothers

ALL MEN ARE BROTHERS is a great pageant of China. I think it is one of the most magnificent pageants ever made of any people. Before your eyes upon the pages of this book march the people of China — all the people; men, women and children; priests, scholars, robbers, courtesans, soldiers, emperors, captains, kings, princes, governors, gofers, vendors, prisoners — the whole past passes by. They are a host living and vivid beyond belief. Some of them will pass you but once. But others will pass you again and again until you know them and know their names.

Therefore when you read this book forget it as a book. Think of it as a great procession of humanity. Do not try to remember the names of any of the people as they appear, or the names of the places they frequent. Simply watch the people pass, letting them impress themselves upon you of their own accord. If they do not impress you, let them go on. Do not even try to read every word or see everything. Where the marching lags, look on more quickly until your interest catches hold again upon some bold figure. When you have finished the book to its triumphant end, you will find that, without your knowing it, there will remain in your mind out of the hundreds of people who have passed before your eyes, certain unforgettable men and women, whose lives you have lived with them, across the seas and centuries.
