DR CONGO FORCES KILL 39 BURUNDI REFUGEES

Name of Analyst, Head, Africa Desk | September 16, 2017

Troops in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) opened fire on refugees protesting the detainment of four or their fellow refugees. Troops had tried to disperse the refugees by "firing in the air but were overwhelmed" when the group responded by throwing stones in Friday's confrontation at the National Intelligence Agency in the capital Kinshasa.

The four refugees were detained for possessing weapons on September 12, the Congolese government reports.

Al Jazeera reports that 114 more people were injured and one Congolese soldier was killed in the clashes. But the government reports that five soldiers were killed.

More than 400,000 refugees have fled the DRC's neighbor Burundi since violence erupted there in April 2015, according to The Citizen.

The United Nations (UN) estimates that the DRC is temporary home to more than 43,700 refugees.

The DRC government said it has opened an official investigation into the incident. The UN is urging the government to ensure the protection of refugees.
