Brigitte Reimann Ankunft Im Alltag Roman:

'Diese merkwürdige Kleinigkeit einer Vision' David Clarke, 2021-11-15 Christoph Hein is one of the best known authors of the former GDR and his works of fiction have been widely interpreted as responses to and critiques of socialist society In this study David Clarke undertakes a detailed analysis of all of Christoph Hein's major works of fiction from Der fremde Freund 1928 to Willenbrock 2000 in order to explore Hein's critique of the GDR regime whilst also demonstrating how aspects of that critique provided a starting point for Hein's rejection of capitalism both before and after German unification For Hein socialism had failed to make good its promise to create a community bound together by common values and goals preferring instead to impose conformity upon its citizens Capitalism he believed was equally unable to meet the need for community and Hein sought to demonstrate the consequences of this state of affairs in the figure of W in his first post unification novel Das Napoleon Spiel 1993 After this point Clarke argues Hein was nevertheless forced to re-examine his criticism of capitalism a process which ultimately led to the more differentiated and convincing portrayal to be found in Willenbrock

Post-fascist Fantasies Julia Hell, 1997 Employing an approach informed by Slavoj Žižek's work on the Communist's sublime body and by British psychoanalytic feminism's concern with feminine subjectivity Hell first examines the antifascist works by exiled authors and authors tied to the resistance movement She then strives to understand the role of Christa Wolf the GDR's most prominent author in the GDR's effort to reconstruct symbolic power after the Nazi period

Literary Communication from Consensus to Rupture Colin Barr Grant, 2023-03-13 This study the first of its kind in English sets out to analyse literature as a form of social communication by considering developments in literary theory and practice in the German Democratic Republic in the Honecker era Attention focuses on the changes in the discourses of literary theory and literary practice in a semi public sphere controlled by an increasingly ossified political discourse Key developments in the 1970s hailed by GDR theorists as the point of departure for a new kind of literary communication in society are carefully examined The study then contrasts these idealised views of literature as social communication with practice and theory in the late 1970s and 1980s In clear trends in practice and to a lesser extent in theory communication was perceived as being increasingly problematic and conflictual The development from this sense of destabilisation to the rupturing in communication between literature and society between literature and political authority and in literature itself became more salient in the 1980s as its forms and themes radically challenged the mounting stagnation of the discourse of political power These conflicts are illustrated and discussed with the aid of detailed analyses of key literary texts and previously unpublished interviews with leading theorists

Rifts in Time and in the Self Cheryl Dueck, 2021-11-01 The fall of the Berlin Wall in November 1989 marked the end of East Germany's socialist regime and a new beginning for a unified German Federal Republic Cultural historians agree that the event caused one of the deepest rifts in time and thinking seen by an entire generation of Germans a rift that left its mark on the psyche of every citizen challenging notions of the personal and the political and crashing traditional understandings of the individual and the collective self In this bold rethinking of the question Cheryl Dueck goes beyond the social political and psychological discourses that Marx and Freud Foucault and Lacan viewed as the initiators of modern socialist identities to explore the literature and discourse of the quest for unity of the female subject Reading such authors as Christa Wolf Brigitte Reimann Helga K nigsdorf and Helga Schubert Dueck traces the striking fissures which run through time and through the female self haunting women within the socialist project The book shows how two generations of women writers have struggled consciously and systematically in their letters aesthetic writings and literary production to create a new language to express their own sense of self within a restrictive socialist and patriarchal system Rifts in Time and in the Self offers an unprecedented look at the reconceptualizations of the female subject during several phases of GDR history and women writers persistent attempt to carve out spaces of identity and community
