Past Matters Caroline Miller, 2009-03-26 Past Matters brings together a group of largely Australian and New Zealand academics who in a series of case studies consider how planning concepts were adopted, adjusted, adapted and extended in a Pacific Rim setting. The early chapters explore the interplay between British and American planning models and local circumstances in Australia, Japan and New Zealand. The main body of chapters recount difficulties faced by indigenous peoples with respect to housing needs and more generally reasserting themselves in what began as colonial urban areas as well as others that look at community meanings, liberalism and exclusion on the street and the power of sectional interests. The latter chapters also pose questions about urban heritage in terms of what and whose interests are at stake in these debates. The volume concludes with two convergent chapters that outline some practices by which heritage of a more day to day suburban sort can be protected within a planning system. The collection centres on Australia and New Zealand but extends to include chapters on Canada and Japan. The viewpoints offered serve as a gentle reminder of the limitations of Metropolitan Theory

Island Criminology John Scott, Zoe Staines, 2024-05-21 Ten percent of the world's population lives on islands but until now the place and space characteristics of islands in criminological theory have not been deeply considered. This book moves beyond the question of whether islands have more or less crime than other places and instead addresses issues of how and by whom crime is defined in island settings which crimes are policed and visible and who is subject to regulation. These questions are informed by the politics of place and belonging and the distinctive social networks and normative structures of island communities

Decolonizing Solidarity Clare Land, 2015-07-15 In this highly original and much needed book Clare Land interrogates the often fraught endeavours of activists from colonial backgrounds seeking to be politically supportive of Indigenous struggles. Blending key theoretical and practical questions Land argues that the predominant impulses which drive middle class settler activists to support Indigenous people cannot lead to successful alliances and meaningful social change unless they are significantly transformed through a process of both public political action and critical self reflection. Based on a wealth of in depth original research and focussing in particular on Australia where despite strident challenges the vestiges of British law and cultural power have restrained the nation's emergence out of colonizing dynamics Decolonizing Solidarity provides a vital resource for those involved in Indigenous activism and scholarship

COVID-19 and a World of Ad Hoc Geographies Stanley D. Brunn, Donna Gilbreath, 2022-09-15 This book provides an interdisciplinary overview of the causes and impacts of COVID 19 on populations, economies, politics, institutions and environments from all world regions. The book maps the causes, effects and impacts of the virus and describes the impact of the virus on, among others, health care, teaching and learning, travel, tourism, daily life, local and regional economies, media, impacts, elections and indigenous populations and much more. Contributions to this book come from the humanities, social and policy science disciplines as well as from emerging transdisciplinary fields.

including climate change sustainability health care and epidemiology security art visualization economic and social well being law and borderland studies As such this book will be a rich source of information to all those geographers social scientists and urban and regional planners working in this field My Wife and I in Queensland Charles Henry Eden, 1872 General life of natives and native police very brief references Brisbane coastal area to Rockhampton Dawson River
