British Samplers:

British Samplers Jane Toller, 1980 From the end of the 16th century embroidery came into increasing use for many purposes and many a needle woman collected samplers of her designs in her pattern book British Samplers Mary Eirwen Jones, 1948 Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record of British and Foreign Literature, 1895 Samplers City of Bristol Museum and Art Gallery, Karin-M. Walton, 1983 Catalogue of Samplers, with 16 Illustrations Victoria and Albert Museum. Department of Textiles, 1922 Samplers from A to Z Pamela A. Parmal, 2000 Artwork by Pamela Parmal

Victorian Britain Sally Mitchell, 2011 First published in 1988 this encyclopedia serves as an overview and point of entry to the complex interdisciplinary field of Victorian studies The signed articles which cover persons events institutions topics groups and artefacts in Great Britain between 1837 and 1901 have been written by authorities in the field and contain bibliographies to provide guidelines for further research The work is intended for undergraduates and the general reader and also as a starting point for graduates who wish to explore new fields Embroidered Samplers in the Collection of the Cooper-Hewitt Museum Cooper-Hewitt Museum, Gillian Moss, 1984 Stitching the World: Embroidered Maps and Women's Geographical Education Judith A. Tyner, 2016-12-05 From the late eighteenth century until about 1840 schoolgirls in the British Isles and the United States created embroidered map samplers and even silk globes Hundreds of British maps were made and although American examples are more rare they form a significant collection of artefacts Descriptions of these samplers stated that they were designed to teach needlework and geography The focus of this book is not on stitches and techniques used in drafting the maps but rather why they were developed how they diffused from the British Isles to the United States and why they were made for such a brief time The events of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries stimulated an explosion of interest in geography The American and French Revolutions the wars between France and England the War of 1812 Captain Cook's voyages and the explorations of Lewis and Clark made the study of places exciting and important Geography was the first science taught to girls in school This period also coincided with major changes in educational theories and practices especially for girls and this book uses needlework maps and globes to chart a broader discussion of women's geographic education In this light map samplers and embroidered globes represent a transition in women's education from accomplishments in the eighteenth century to challenging geographic education and conventional map drawing in schools and academies of the second half of the nineteenth century There has been little serious study of these maps by cartographers and moreover historians of cartography have largely neglected the role of women in mapping Children's maps have not been studied although they might have much to offer about geographical teaching and perceptions of a period and map samplers have been dismissed because they are the work of schoolgirls Needlework historians likewise have not done in depth studies of map samplers until recently Stitching the World is an interdisciplinary work drawing on cartography needlework and material culture This book for the first time provides a critical analysis of these artefacts showing that they offer significant insights into both eighteenth and nineteenth century geographic thought and cartography in the USA and the UK and into the development of female education

The History of Cartography, Volume 4 Matthew H. Edney, Mary Sponberg Pedley, 2020-05-15 Since its launch in 1987 the History of Cartography series has garnered critical acclaim and sparked a new generation of interdisciplinary scholarship Cartography in the European Enlightenment the highly anticipated fourth volume offers a comprehensive overview of the cartographic practices of Europeans Russians and the Ottomans both at home and in overseas territories from 1650 to 1800 The social and intellectual changes that swept Enlightenment Europe also transformed many of its mapmaking practices A new emphasis on geometric principles gave rise to improved tools for measuring and mapping the world even as large scale cartographic projects became possible under the aegis of powerful states Yet older mapping practices persisted Enlightenment cartography encompassed a wide variety of processes for making circulating and using maps of different types The volume s more than four hundred encyclopedic articles explore the era s mapping covering topics both detailed such as geodetic surveying thematic mapping and map collecting and broad such as women and cartography cartography and the economy and the art and design of maps Copious bibliographical references and nearly one thousand full color illustrations complement the detailed entries
