Andrew Corbett

British Thinking About Nuclear Weapons:

The United Kingdom and the Future of Nuclear Weapons Andrew Futter, 2016-06-16 Since 1969 the United Kingdom always has always had one submarine armed with nuclear tipped ballistic missiles underwater undetected in constant communication ready at a set notice to fire at targets anywhere in the world This is part of its Trident Programme which includes the development procurement and operation of the current generation of British nuclear weapons as well as the means to deliver them Operated by the Royal Navy and based at Clyde Naval Base on Scotland s west coast it is the most expensive and most powerful capability of the British military forces In 2016 the United Kingdom had to decide on whether to go ahead and build the next generation of nuclear submarines that will allow the UK to remain in the nuclear business well into the second half of this century The book presents the political cultural technical and strategic aspects of Trident to provide a thoughtful overview of the UK s complex relationship with nuclear weapons The authors both scholars and practitioners bring together diverse perspectives on the issue discussing the importance of UK nuclear history as well as the political legal and diplomatic aspects of UK nuclear weapons internationally and domestically Also addressed are the new technical military and strategic challenges to the UK nuclear thinking and strategy

British Thinking about Nuclear Weapons A. J. R. Groom, 1974

British thinking about nuclear weapons 1940-1062 Arthur John Richard Groom, 1974

The British Nuclear Weapons Programme, 1952-2002 Dr Frank Barnaby, Dr Douglas Holdstock, 2004-11-23 The first British nuclear weapon test took place in Australia in October 1952 British nuclear weapons have been a source of controversy ever since In this book scientists doctors researchers and others assess the military value political impact health effects and legality of the programme

Imagining Nuclear War in the British Army, 1945-1989 Simon Moody, 2020 The primary mission assigned to the British Army from the 1950s until the end of the Cold War was deterring Soviet aggression in Europe by demonstrating the will and capability to fight with nuclear weapons to defend NATO territory This is the first comprehensive account of how the British Army imagined nuclear war and how it planned to fight it

Nuclear Fictions Michael Gardiner, 2024-11-30 In this book Michael Gardiner suggests that the conception of the war ending weapon was tied up with a longer commitment to unified space and singular progress The mission for total weapons can be seen rising with the highly technical defensive war of the later nineteenth century and passing through twentieth century atomic research then the targeting of the outsides of commercial empire and the post war consensus with deterrence as its foundation The end of the Cold War brought an opportunity to fully naturalise deterrence but also brought a tacit acceptance of nuclear violence while forms of violence against the individual were rigorously sought out If the world unifying role of deterrence has always been undermined by the rise of rival empires it has also been questioned by critical communities including the consensus sceptics of the 1950s 60s 1980s 90s Nuclear Criticism and readers of nuclear ism millennial campaigns for Scottish independence and twenty first century descriptions of nuclear colonialism Recently it has become more obvious that an Anglosphere concept of worldly deterrence was bound to a singular and ultimately nihilistic idea of progress bio Michael Gardiner is Professor in the Department of English and Comparative Literature at the University of Warwick

The Royal Navy and Nuclear Weapons Richard Moore, 2018-12-07 This work examines British thinking about nuclear weapons in the period up to about 1970 looking at the subject through the eyes of the Royal Navy in the belief that this can offer new insights in this field The author argues that the Navy was always sceptical about nuclear weapons both on practical grounds and because of wartime and pre war experiences He suggests that this scepticism can teach us a good deal about military technological innovation in general

Nuclear Reactions Mark S. Bell, 2021-04-15 Nuclear Reactions analyzes how nuclear weapons change the calculations states make in their foreign policies why they do so and why nuclear weapons have such different effects on the foreign policies of different countries Mark S Bell argues that nuclear weapons are useful for more than deterrence They are leveraged to pursue a wide range of goals in international politics and the nations that acquire them significantly change their foreign policies as a result Closely examining how these effects vary and what those variations have meant in the United States the United Kingdom and South Africa Bell shows that countries are not generically emboldened they change their foreign policies in different ways based on their priorities This has huge policy implications What would Iran do if it were to acquire nuclear weapons Would Japanese policy toward the United States change if Japan were to obtain nuclear weapons And what does the looming threat of nuclear weapons mean for the future of foreign policy Far from being a relic of the Cold War Bell argues nuclear weapons are as important in international politics today as they ever were Thanks to generous funding from the University of Minnesota and its participation in TOME the ebook editions of this book are available as Open Access volumes available from Cornell Open cornellpress.cornell.edu/cornell-open and other repositories

The British Nuclear Experience John Baylis, Kristan Stoddart, 2015 Based on a detailed analysis of archives and high level interviews this book looks at the role of beliefs culture and identity in the making of British nuclear policy from 1945 through to the present day This book also examines Britain's nuclear experience by moving away from traditional interpretations of why states develop and maintain nuclear weapons by adopting a more contemporary approach to political theory Traditional mainstream explanations tend to stress the importance of factors such as the maximization of power the pursuit of national security interests and the role of structure in a largely anarchic international system This book does not dismiss these approaches but argues that British experience suggests that focusing on beliefs culture and identity provides a more useful insight and distinctive interpretation into the process of British nuclear decision making than the more traditional approaches

Supreme emergency Andrew Corbett, 2022-02-15 In Supreme emergency an ex Trident submarine captain considers the evolution of UK nuclear deterrence policy and the implications of a previously unacknowledged aversion to military strategies that threaten civilian casualties Drawing on extensive archival research the book provides a unique synthesis of the factors affecting British nuclear policy decision making and draws parallels between government debates about reprisals for First World War zeppelin raids on London the strategic bombing raids of the Second World War and the evolution of the UK nuclear deterrent It concludes that among all the technical factors an aversion to being seen to condone civilian casualties has inhibited government engagement with the public on deterrence strategy since 1915
