Edward G. Miller

Battle Of Hurtgen Forest:

The Battle of the Huertgen Forest Charles B. MacDonald, 2002-09-10 An account of the first setback suffered by the Allies following the invasion of Europe The Bloody Forest Gerald Astor, 2010-06-02 The definitive account of one of World War II's bloodiest campaigns the five month battle between American and German forces in the Huertgen Forest told through the words of the men who were there From the preface In the course of research and interviews while writing a series of books on World War II I became increasingly aware of the campaign for the Huertgen Forest While survivors of other battles sometimes criticized the strategy and the orders they were given there was a depth of anger about the Huertgen that surpassed anything I had encountered elsewhere The unhappiness with what occurred and the absence of much objective coverage in the memoirs of those in the top command slots convinced me to produce this history As I have reiterated in all of my books which rely heavily on oral or eyewitness reports there are always the dangers of flawed memory limited vantage points and the possibility of self interest in such accounts But the almost universal condemnation of their superiors critical decisions by individuals who were under fire in that green hell offers a cautionary note on the accuracy and the truths of histories that draw from the official documents and the personal papers of the likes of Dwight Eisenhower Omar Bradley Courtney Hodges who apparently left little in the way of records J Lawton Collins and others in similar positions Each new war differs from that of the past but to ignore what happened in the Huertgen enhances the possibilities for another bitter victory if not a defeat The Battle of Hurtgen Forest Charles Whiting, 2000 This text is an account of the battle of Hurtgen Forest on the German Belgian border in WW2 which ran from September 1944 to February 1945 Thirty thousand US soldiers were killed or wounded during this hellish battle Battle Of Hurtgen Forest Charles Whiting, 2000-11-22 The U S Army regards the Hurtgen Forest as one of the most desperate battles it has ever fought Flanking the key German city of Aachen the forest was one of the formidable natural barriers interspersed with German fortifications in the West Wall in September 1944 The Battle of Hurtgen Forest Charles Whiting, 1989 Recounts the longest battle of World War II argues that the campaign was ill conceived and describes the experiences of the soldiers fighting there Hürtgen Forest 1944 \(1\) Michael McNally, 2025-02-27 The first part of a detailed study of one of the longest and most brutal tactical operations of World War II In September 1944 the Allied High Command continued to press eastwards towards the Rhine the thrust being spearheaded by Courtney Hodges US First Army whose proposed line of advance was through a wooded area south of Aachen known locally as the Hürtgenwald or Hurtgen Forest On the opposing side the German forces under the overall command of Walter Model would do all they could to defend the Reich but also maintain a staging post for the forthcoming Battle of the Bulge Fought in brutal terrain heavily wooded riven with razor sharp ridgelines and precipitous cliffs and with a woefully inadequate road network and in all elements the Battle of Hurtgen Forest was a grinding and protracted encounter where gains were measured in feet and yards and not miles This study explores the first phase of this bloody battle including the Aachen Question facing the Allies Featuring stunning artwork detailed maps and diagrams and period images this book provides a gripping narrative of the infamous clash in the Hurtgen Forest concluding with an assessment of the situation in November 1944 and the preparations for the next phase of operations

Hell in Hurtgen Forest Robert S. Rush, 2001

Some of the most brutally intense infantry combat in World War II occurred within Germany's Hurtgen Forest Focusing on the bitterly fought battle between the American 22d Infantry Regiment and elements of the German LXXIV Korps around Grosshau Rush chronicles small unit combat at its most extreme and shows why despite enormous losses the Americans persevered in the Hurtgenwald meat grinder On 16 November 1944 the 22d Infantry entered the Hurtgen Forest as part of the U S Army's drive to cross the Roer River During the next eighteen days the 22d suffered more than 2 800 casualties or about 86 percent of its normal strength of about 3 250 officers and men After three days of fighting the regiment had lost all three battalion commanders After seven days rifle company strengths stood at 50 percent and by battle's end each had suffered nearly 140 percent casualties Despite these horrendous losses the 22d Regiment survived and fought on due in part to army personnel policies that ensured that unit strengths remained high even during extreme combat Previously wounded soldiers returned to their units and new replacements green to battle arrived to follow the remaining battle hardened cadre The German units in the Hurtgenwald suffered the same horrendous attrition with one telling difference German replacement policy detracted from rather than enhanced German combat effectiveness Organizations had high paper strength but low manpower and commanders consolidated decimated units time after time until these ever dwindling bands of soldiers disappeared forever killed wounded captured or surrendered The performance of American and German forces during this harrowing eighteen days of combat was largely a product of their respective backgrounds training and organization Rush's work underscores both the horrors of combat and the resiliency of American organizations While honoring
