Bozeman,2023-04-15 Jennifer is lingering in Paris avoiding the distress of her father s deterioration with ALS and hoping for a commitment from her boyfriend Guillaume when she receives a curt email informing her of her father's death. She catches the first direct flight to DFW where she is met by her father's caretaker Jase, an attractive but reticent young man she later learns is limited by Asperger's syndrome. Home in Preston Hollow, an affluent suburb of Dallas, she is met by the tearful cook, housekeeper Juanita, her surrogate mother. Inside she finds Ross, her father's longtime friend, lawyer and money manager, and Tom, the groundskeeper who was at a rehearsal when her father died, ostensibly by a self-inflicted pistol shot through his brain. Ross and his charming wife Monica accompany Jen to the visitation at an upscale funeral parlor where she meets Harlan, the handsome, charming, spiffily dressed neighbor. In the new palazzo across the alley, she sees a demonstration of Jase's devotion to her father and Tom's support of his younger friend, topped by the visit of two of Dad's dishonest political adversaries, both drunk and boisterous. The interment at a modest cemetery in nearby Collin County, where Dad grew up, is less eventful, but Tom is one of the pallbearers, an indication Ross recognizes his importance to her father. Harlan attends, and she finds his consolation a bit effusive and over-rehearsed. When Harlan takes a seat at the family table during the post-funeral buffet, Jen is a bit miffed. She is even more annoyed when her Uncle Ockie, Great Uncle Oscar, the only other survivor of her family, recognizes Tom, who is quietly serving guests by replenishing their beverages, as a trusted friend. She is dismayed when Harlan produces a will leaving most of Dad's estate to his Center for Religious Understanding. Jase, a gifted pianist, is also proficient with a computer keyboard, finds evidence that Harlan is nearly bankrupt. He persuades Jen to attend a performance of Camino Real at the Bathhouse, in which Tom plays Kilroy, and she recognizes his talent and she is falling in love with him. Tom continues to keep his distance. She decides to investigate Harlan more closely, pretends she intends to return to Paris to marry Guillaume, and asks for Harlan's advice about selling her house. He invites her to dinner at his scantily furnished mansion, she has too much wine, and overplays her hand by stealing Harlan's most valued possession, a platinum Rolex. When Harlan comes to reclaim it and threatens her with a pistol, Jase intervenes and is seriously wounded. Tom comes to their rescue and saves Jase's life by stanching his wound. The police find a missing RFID card on Harlan that had been used to gain entrance at the time of Dad's death, and Jen and Harlan become a local cause célèbre. Tom gets an offer from a Hollywood casting director who has seen his performance in Camino and departs, but Jen remains hopeful and concentrates on promoting Jase's career as an amateur pianist.

The Devil's Dust Charles Mashburn, 2000-04. Danny Mercer plans a well-thought-out heist to rip off a large amount of cocaine from Never Moore, one of the biggest, baddest drug dealers in the state of Kansas. The tables turn, however, when Danny's cohorts, all playing leading roles in the conspiracy, decide they want a bigger cut of the profits and turn the heist into a dangerous game of keep-away. All hell breaks loose, and sex, drugs, and general mayhem are the order of the day, as a cast of gritty, all-too-believable characters run wild in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The game is deadly, and the rules are simple: To put it simply, the winner is the last one standing.
