Stephenson, Natalie Persadie, 2022-12-13 This work critically examines diversity discrimination and inclusion in the English speaking Caribbean nations with a specific emphasis on persons with disabilities The chapters include an evaluative analysis on the extant theoretical and empirical literature on persons with disabilities in employment exploring the nature of their disability the role of information technology in gaining and retaining employment and an analysis of the laws and relevant policies which prohibit the discrimination against persons with disabilities in the Caribbean region Though the enactment of legislation outlawing the discrimination of persons with disabilities is not widespread in the Caribbean a few select territories have taken positive steps towards recognition of the need to achieve inclusion of persons with disabilities and accept the diversity of the Caribbean populace After exploring the general state of disability and discrimination in the Caribbean region the authors analyze workplace accommodations provided to persons with disability particularly as relations to IT and assistive devices before focusing on workplace stigmas related to mental health disability and employment law In addition to literature based analyses the book includes qualitative case studies with the goal of providing benchmarks in organizational responses to employees with disabilities Further the authors highlight lessons to be learned from other countries in addressing inequality in the workplace for disabled persons With its analysis of employment as well as socio economic and legal issues this interdisciplinary text will serve as a useful resource in not only understanding the organizational challenges faced by persons with disabilities in the region but also the necessary legislation needed to address discriminatory practices on a wider scale From Challenges to Opportunities Negin Shah Hosseini,Pauline Runge,Joachim Schroeder,2023-05-03 The articles compiled in this publication present the findings from an international interdisciplinary project on counselling in the field of disability The research was conducted over a four year period during a dialogue between six universities in Iraq Iran and Germany The participating researchers contributed their expertise from the fields of special education social work and psychology The internationality and diversity of the project group additionally enabled an interdisciplinary approach to the subjects of disability and counselling The challenges and opportunities in these areas were determined and compared during a differentiated analysis of the counselling structures in the fields of action of family counselling career counselling and university counselling The articles thus reflect a range of different professional perspectives and regional contexts along with the authors individual points of view Inequality and Organizational Practice Stefanos Nachmias,Valerie Caven,2019-03-28 Bringing together international authors this edited collection addresses the need for greater inclusivity within organizational policy and practice in order to tackle both visible and invisible inequalities amongst employees Evidence suggests that more positive employment relationships can be brought about by tackling diversity issues yet there are still grey areas existing in the current legislative framework Volume I explores the way that these hidden inequalities can be used to identify an individual as other and how this ultimately affects their wellbeing and welfare at work Analysing social justice and stigma as well as nuanced issues within the workplace this book is a thought provoking read for scholars of HRM practitioners and policy makers Activities of the ILO 1996-97 International Labour Office,1998 A Practical Guide to Delivering Personalisation Helen Sanderson,Jaimee Lewis,2012 This is the comprehensive guide to delivering personalisation in health and social care using person centred approaches It covers what personalisation and person centred approaches are the different elements involved and how to carry it out with all those receiving care and support from people with disabilities to people at the end of life Disability, Human Rights and the Limits of Humanitarianism Michael Gill,Cathy J. Schlund-Vials,2016-05-23 Disability studies scholars and activists have long criticized and critiqued so termed charitable approaches to disability where the capitalization of individual disabled bodies to invoke pity are historically socially and politically circumscribed by paternalism Disabled individuals have long advocated for civil and human rights in various locations throughout the globe yet contemporary human rights discourses problematically co opt disabled bodies as evidence of harms done under capitalism war and other forms of conflict while humanitarian non governmental organizations often use disabled bodies to generate resources for their humanitarian projects It is the connection between civil rights and human rights and this concomitant relationship between national and global which foregrounds this groundbreaking book s contention that disability studies productively challenge such human rights paradigms which troublingly eschew disability rights in favor of exclusionary humanitarianism It relocates disability from the margins to the center of academic and activist debates over the vexed relationship between human rights and humanitarianism These considerations thus productively destabilize able bodied assumptions that undergird definitions of personhood in civil rights and human rights by highlighting intersections between disability race gender ethnicity and sexuality as a way to interrogate the possibilities and limitations of human rights as a politicized regime
