Reading Race Relationally Marlon Lieber, 2023-04-03 What does it mean to write African American literature after the end of legalized segregation In this study of Colson Whitehead's first six novels Marlon Lieber argues that this question has permeated the Pulitzer Prize winning author's writing since his 1999 debut The Intuitionist Drawing on Pierre Bourdieu's relational sociology and Marxist critical theory Lieber shows that Whitehead's oeuvre articulates the tension between the persistent presence of racism and transformations in the United States class structure which reveals new modes of abjection At the same time Whitehead imagines forms of writing that strive to transcend the histories of domination objectified in social structures and embodied in the form of habitus

Liberalism and American Literature in the Clinton Era Ryan M. Brooks, 2022-06-30 Liberalism and American Literature in the Clinton Era argues that a new post postmodern aesthetic emerges in the 1990s as a group of American writers including Mary Gaitskill George Saunders Richard Powers Karen Tei Yamashita and others grapples with the political triumph of free market ideology The book shows how these writers resist the anti social qualities of this frantic right wing shift while still performing its essential gesture the personalization of otherwise irreducible social antagonisms Thus we see these writers reinvent political struggles as differences in values and emotions in fictions that explore non antagonistic social forms like families communities and networks Situating these formally innovative fictions in the context of the controversies that have defined this rightward shift including debates over free trade welfare reform and family values Brooks details how American writers and politicians have reinvented liberalism for the age of pro capitalist consensus
