African Archaeology:

African Connections Peter Mitchell, 2005-01-24 From the exodus of early modern humans to the growth of African diasporas Africa has had a long and complex relationship with the outside world More than a passive vessel manipulated by external empires the African experience has been a complex mix of internal geographic environmental sociopolitical and economic factors and regular interaction with outsiders Peter Mitchell attempts to outline these factors over the long period of modern human history to find their commonalities and development over time He examines African interconnections through Egypt and Nubia with the Near East through multiple Indian Ocean trading systems through the trans Saharan trade and through more recent incursion of Europeans The African diaspora is also explored for continuities and resistance to foreign domination Commonalities abound in the African experience as do complexities of each individual period and interrelationship Mitchell's sweeping analysis of African connections place the continent in context of global prehistory and history The book should be of interest not only to Africanists but to many other archaeologists historians geographers linguists social scientists and their students
