Drucker, 1982 The Age of Discontinuity Guidelines to our Changing Society Peter F. Drucker, 1969 The age of discontinuity; guidelines to our changing society, by Peter F. Drucker Peter Ferdinand Drucker, 1969 The Age of Discontinuity John White, 1969 The Age of Discontinuity Peter Ferdinand Drucker, 1968 A Mental Revolution Daniel Nelson, 1992 A Mental Revolution includes eight original essays that analyze how the scientific management principles developed by legendary engineer Frederick W Taylor have evolved and been applied since his death in 1915 Taylor believed that a business or any other complex organization would operate more effectively if its practices were subjected to rigorous scientific study His classic Principles of Scientific Management spread his ideas for organization planning and employee motivation throughout the industrialized world But scientific management because it required in Taylor s words a complete mental revolution was highly disruptive and Taylor's famous time motion studies especially when applied piecemeal by many employers who did not adopt the entire system helped make the movement enormously unpopular with the organized labor movement. Though its direct influence diminished by the 1930s, Taylorism has remained a force in American business and industry up to the present time. The essays in this volume discuss some of the important people and organizations involved with Taylorism throughout this century including Richard Feiss and Mary Barnett Gilson at Joseph Feiss Frank and Lillian Gilbreth and Mary Van Kleeck and explore the influence of scientific management at the Bedaux Company, the Link Belt Company and Du Pont. Chapters on the Taylor movement's influence on university business education and on Peter Drucker's theories round out the collection. Written by some of the finest scholars of the scientific management movement, A Mental Revolution provides a balanced and comprehensive view of its principles, evolution and influence on business, labor, management and education. Human-Centred Systems in the Global Economy Yuji Masuda, 2012-12-06. The arrival of the information society in Japan has radically altered the industrial structure, work patterns and cultural values of its society. The innovation and implementation of information technology has accelerated this change and made its effects more profoundly felt. Because of this, there is now a need to widen the debate on human-centred manufacturing systems to include broader issues such as industrial culture, international economies and global knowledge. Human Centred Systems in the Global Economy contains the proceedings of an international workshop held at Tokyo Keizai University which looked at the design of human-centred systems in the context of these technological and social changes. The workshop attracted contributions from internationally known researchers in Europe, Japan, the USA, South East Asia, Eastern Europe and the USSR. The resulting volume is unique in that it addresses the relationship of information technology to Japanese society as a whole rather than concentrating on technical issues. The papers have been divided into three areas covering the structure, dimensions and policies and perspectives of the information society. Specific areas covered include social and cultural shaping of technology, economic interdependence, technology and knowledge transfer, computer-aided design, management culture and communication technologies. Human Centred Systems in the Global Economy provides a comprehensive assessment of the debates on human-centred systems and will be of interest to people in a wide variety of disciplines including information technology, economic development, management science and related studies of social science and humanities.

Knowledge Economy, Development and the Future of Higher Education Michael A. Peters, 2007-01-01. Prophetically almost thirty years ago Jean-François Lyotard forecast the end of the modern research university based on Enlightenment principles. He envisaged the emergence of technical institutes in the service of the information-rich global multinationals. This book reflects on the post-war Western university and its discourses charting the crisis of the concept of the modern university. First it examines the university within a global networked economy; second it adopts poststructuralist perspectives in epistemology, politics and ethics to appraise the role of the contemporary university third it introduces the notion of development in a critical fashion as a way of explaining its potentially new regional and international learning roles fourth it analyzes the rise of global science and the disciplines in the context of the global economy and finally it raises Lyotard's logic of performativity and the assessment of research quality within a neoliberal economy linking it firmly to the question of freedom and the republic of science
