After The End Of History The Curious Fate Of American Materialism:

After the End of History Robert E. Lane, 2009-11-16 Robert E Lane is one of the most prominent and distinguished critics of both the human impact of market economies and economic theory arguing from much research that happiness is more likely to flow from companionship enjoyment of work contribution to society and the opportunity to develop as a person than from the pursuit of wealth and the accumulation of material goods in market economies This latest work playfully personalizes the contrast through a dialogue between a humanistic social scientist Dessi and a market economist Adam It is all too rare to have the two sides talking to each other Moreover in Lane s witty and literate hands it is an open minded and balanced conversation in which neither side has all the answers His unparalleled grasp of interdisciplinary social scientific knowledge is brought to bear on the largest questions of human life What genuinely makes people happy How should human society be organized to maximize the quality of human lives David O Sears Professor of Psychology and Political Science UCLA Lane s deep knowledge of the sources of human happiness enables him to develop a powerful critique of economic theory Robert A Dahl Sterling Professor Emeritus of Political Science Yale University Robert E Lane is the Eugene Meyer Professor Emeritus of Political Science at Yale University His previous publications include The Loss of Happiness in Market Democracies 2000 and The Market Experience 1991

The Iron Cage Revisited R. Bruce Douglass, 2018-06-12 At the start of the twentieth century when Germany among other nations was undergoing industrialization Max Weber famously characterized modern life in words that have often been translated as iron cage During the industrial era that image caught on and was often used by scholars to express concerns about the extent to which the actual character of modern life contradicted its emancipatory promise But we are living in a different time now when the conditions under which we live seem to be quite different from the ones that pertained in Weber s day It is a time when in some respects at least life seems to be freer and more conducive to experimentation which has led some people to conclude that our societies have escaped from Weber s cage But is that really true This book challenges that notion considering the consequences for our way of life of the triumph of neoliberalism as a political force

The Bridge at the Edge of the World James Gustave Speth, 2008-01-01 Presents an analysis of modern capitalism and its impact on the global environmental crises and discusses how the transformation of current economic and political systems can lead to environmental sustainability

Ethics of Global Development David A. Crocker, 2008-07-10 Poverty inequality violence environmental degradation and tyranny continue to afflict the world Ethics of Global Development offers a moral reflection on the ends and means of local national and global efforts to overcome these five scourges After emphasizing the role of ethics in development studies policy making and practice David A Crocker analyzes and evaluates Amartya Sen s philosophy of development in relation to alternative ethical outlooks He argues that Sen s turn to robust ideals of human agency and democracy improves on both Sen s earlier emphasis on capabilities and functionings and Martha Nussbaum s version of the capability orientation This agency focused capability approach is then extended and strengthened by applying it to the challenges of consumerism and hunger the development responsibilities of affluent individuals and nations and the dilemmas of globalization Throughout the book the author argues for the importance of more inclusive and deliberative democratic institutions Beyond the Consumption Bubble Karin Ekström, Kay Glans, 2010-12-14 Research on consumption can shed light on many fundamental questions such as the character of society including social and cultural dimensions the relations between the generations dependency on technology and the risks involved the rise of Asia and its potential consumption preferences the question of whether we must continuously increase our consumption to avoid a recession and whether this is ecologically sustainable In the field of consumption research there is need for analytical rigor based on theory and empirical evidence as well as discussions that will inspire readers to ask important questions regarding future development The contributors to this innovative volume are scholars and experts in the field of consumption representing a variety of disciplines such as anthropology economics history marketing political science and sociology This book not only provides readers with a nuanced picture of consumption but intends to enrich and sharpen the general debate about society today Twenty-first Century Macroeconomics Jonathan M. Harris, Neva R. Goodwin, 2009 The likely economic effects of climate change and the cost of action to avert it are important public policy issues but according to the editors both of the Global Development and Environment Institute Tufts U they also raise fundamental questions about economic analysis and move issues of environmental policy from the microeconomic to the macroeconomic level They therefore present 13 papers addressing the connections between climate change and macroeconomics Opening chapters address fundamental issues of the likely global economic impact of climate change the debate over the economics of climate change as presented in a special 2006 issue of the Stern Review that was commissioned by the government of the UK the place of the climate change debate in the context of broader issues of equitable and sustainable development and a proposed system for allocating carbon emissions reduction requirements The next four chapters present macroeconomic theory perspectives that address issues of energy productivity labor productivity sustainable development consumption and investment Remaining contributions explore policy options including the new European emissions trading scheme Joyce in the Belly of the Big Truck; Workbook Joyce A. Cascio, 2005-05
