Biological Defence Mechanisms:

Low Dose Irradiation and Biological Defense Mechanisms Tsutomu Sugahara, Leonard A. Sagan, Takashi Aoyama, 1992 The above mentioned conference was held with a view to examining perspectives on the biological effects of low dose radiation in conjunction with biological defense mechanisms and their implications for human health and risk assessment Recent studies indicate low dose radiation may produce stimulating effects or adaptive responses and therefore might not be harmful as previously believed Key note lectures and overviews provide a comprehensive review of the issues with many new significant findings paving the way for deeper insights into mechanisms underlying contradictory scientific observations This is the first book presenting the current status of research on laboratory and epidemiological phenomena following low dose irradiation

Detection of Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Agents for the Prevention of Terrorism Joseph Banoub, 2014-11-03 This NATO ASI installment is designed to provide an advanced overview for doctoral and post-doctoral candidates of the state of the art technologies for bio-detection The main objective of the work aims at providing readers with the latest developments necessary to successfully understand the CBRN Agents and their associated biotechnologies The core methods focused on are mass spectrometry including chromatographic and electrophoretic separation and comparisons to spectroscopic immunological and molecular analysis of chemical biological and nuclear agents

Molecular Biology in Crop Protection G. Marshall, 2012-12-06 Few individuals can be unmoved by the impact of molecular biology Advances in the discipline over four decades have progressed at a rate unrivalled in other scientific areas In its formative years molecular biology examined the chemical and physical structures of biological molecules subsequently elucidated the nature and function of DNA and evolved into molecular genetics From this exponential growth of scientific knowledge tremendous opportunities were created for the application of molecular approaches to solve problems in applied biology This book describes the new productive association between novel state of the art molecular biology and crop protection a discipline with a sound heritage in traditional applied biology and chemistry Never before has crop protection faced such diverse challenges It is charged with improving global food supplies and with the pressure of population increases of one billion in the next decade But to consider protection of crops simply in terms of weed pest and disease control would be a gross oversimplification of the mission Rather crop protectionists must develop measures which will maintain crop yield and quality without harm to the environment Chemical cultural and biological approaches to crop protection must also fulfil evolving legislative demands and address the issues which confer public acceptability
