Before The Volcano Erupted The Ancient:

Before the Volcano Erupted Payson D. Sheets, 2013-11-06 On an August evening around AD 600 residents of the Cerén village in the Zapotitlán Valley of what is now El Salvador were sitting down to their nightly meal when ground tremors and loud steam emissions warned of an impending volcanic eruption. The villagers fled leaving their town to be buried under five meters of volcanic ash and forgotten until a bulldozer uncovered evidence of the extraordinarily preserved town in 1976. The most intact Precolumbian village in Latin America, Cerén has been called the Pompeii of the New World. This book presents complete and detailed reports of the excavations carried out at Cerén since 1978 by a multidisciplinary team of archaeologists, ethnographers, volcanologists, geophysicists, botanists, conservators, and others. The book is divided into sections that discuss the physical environment and resources, household structures and economy, special buildings and their uses, artifact analysis, and topical and theoretical issues. As the authors present and analyze Cerén's houses and their goods, workshops, civic and religious buildings, kitchen gardens, planted fields, and garbage dumps, a new and much clearer picture of how commoners lived during the Maya Classic Period emerges. These findings constitute landmark contributions to the anthropology and archaeology of Central America.

The Prehistory of the Tuxtlas Robert S. Santley, 2007 This volume presents Santley's final synthesis of the evolution of Mesoamerican civilization in the Tuxtla Mountains of southern Veracruz, Mexico.

The Prehistory of Home Jerry D. Moore, 2012-04-18 Many animals build shelters but only humans build homes. No other species creates such a variety of dwellings. Drawing examples from across the archaeological record and around the world, archaeologist Jerry D. Moore recounts the cultural development of the uniquely human imperative to maintain domestic dwellings. He shows how our houses allow us to physically adapt to the environment and conceptually order the cosmos and explains how we fabricate dwellings and in the process construct our lives. The Prehistory of Home points out how houses function as symbols of equality or proclaim the social divides between people and how they shield us not only from the elements but increasingly from inchoate fear.

The Life-Giving Stone Michael T. Searcy, 2011-05-15 In The Life-Giving Stone, Michael Searcy provides a thought-provoking ethnoarchaeological account of metate and mano manufacture, marketing, and use among Guatemalan Maya for whom these stone implements are still essential equipment in everyday life and diet. Although many archaeologists have regarded these artifacts simply as common everyday tools and therefore unremarkable, Searcy's methodology reveals how, for the ancient Maya, the manufacture and use of grinding stones significantly impacted their physical and economic welfare. In tracing the life cycle of these tools from production to discard, for the modern Maya, Searcy discovers rich customs and traditions that indicate how metates and manos have continued to sustain life not just literally in terms of food but also in terms of culture. His research is based on two years of fieldwork among three Mayan groups in which he documented behaviors associated with these tools during their procurement, production, acquisition, use, discard, and re-use. Searcy's investigation documents traditional practices that are rapidly being lost or dramatically modified.

In few instances will it be possible in the future to observe metates and manos as central elements in household provisioning or follow their path from hand manufacture to market distribution and to intergenerational transmission In this careful inquiry into the cultural significance of a simple tool Searcy's ethnographic observations are guided both by an interest in how grinding stone traditions have persisted and how they are changing today and by the goal of enhancing the archaeological interpretation of these stones which were so fundamental to pre Hispanic agriculturalists with corn based cuisines

Maya Imagery, Architecture, and Activity Maline D. Werness-Rude, Kaylee R. Spencer, 2015-05 Maya Imagery Architecture and Activity privileges art historical perspectives in addressing the ways the ancient Maya organized manipulated created interacted with and conceived of the world around them The Maya provide a particularly strong example of the ways in which the built and imaged environment are intentionally oriented relative to political religious economic and other spatial constructs In examining space the contributors of this volume demonstrate the core interrelationships inherent in a wide variety of places and spaces both concrete and abstract They explore the links between spatial order and cosmic order and the possibility that such connections have sociopolitical consequences This book will prove useful not just to Mayanists but to art historians in other fields and scholars from a variety of disciplines including anthropology archaeology geography and landscape architecture

K'Oben Amber M. O'Connor, Eugene N. Anderson, 2016-12-14 K Oben traces the Maya kitchen and its associated hardware ingredients and cooking styles from the earliest times for which we have archaeological evidence through today's culinary tourism in the area It focuses not only on what was eaten and how it was cooked but the people involved who grew or sourced the foods who cooked them who ate them Additionally the authors examine how Maya foodways and the people involved fit into the social system particularly in how food is incorporated into culture economy and society The authors provide a detailed literature review of hard to find sources including out of print centuries old cookbooks archaeological field notes ethnographies and ethnohistories out of circulation and not available in English thesis documents only available in Spanish and in university archives as well as current field research on the Maya The more recent Maya foodways can be studied from cookbooks ethnographies and ethnohistorical documentation Between the two of us we have assembled a small but representative collection of cookbooks some self published and rare that were available in Merida and elsewhere in Mexico during the late 20th century Some are quite old and all reflect local traditional foodways Geographically the book concentrates on Yucatan Tabasco and Chiapas in Mexico but will include Pre Classic and Classic evidence from Guatemala and El Salvador whose foodways are influenced by Maya traditions

Continuities and Changes in Maya Archaeology Charles

Golden, Greg Borgstede, 2004-03 This book presents the current state of Maya archaeology by focusing on the history of the field for the last 100 years present day research and forward looking prescription for the direction of the field Social Identities in the Classic Maya Northern Lowlands Traci Ardren, 2015-04-15 Social Identities in the Classic Maya Northern Lowlands plumbs the archaeological record for what it can reveal about the creation of personal and communal identities in the Maya world Using new primary data from her excavations at the sites of Yaxuna Chunchucmil and Xuenkal and new analysis of data from Dzibilchaltun in Yucatan Mexico Traci Ardren presents a series of case studies in how social identities were created shared and manipulated among the lowland Maya Ardren argues that the interacting factors of gender age familial and community memories and the experience of living in an urban setting were some of the key aspects of Maya identities She demonstrates that domestic and civic spaces were shaped by gender specific behaviors to communicate and reinforce gendered ideals Ardren discusses how child burials disclose a sustained pattern of reverence for the potential of childhood and the power of certain children to mediate ancestral power She shows how small shrines built a century after Yaxuna was largely abandoned indicate that its remaining residents used memory to reenvision their city during a time of cultural reinvention And Ardren explains how Chunchucmil s physical layout of houses plazas and surrounding environment denotes that its occupants shared an urban identity centered in the movement of trade goods and economic exchange Viewing this evidence through the lens of the social imaginary and other recent social theory Ardren demonstrates that material culture and its circulations are an integral part of the discourse about social identity and group membership
