Beginning The Novel:

The Beginning David Markiš, 1976 Beginning the Novel P. H. Porosky, 1994 This book is designed so as to provide within one cover everything a novelist needs to begin a longer work of fiction Its basic approach is both directive and prescriptive but it is also flexible enough to account for all the possible modes and genres from children s fairy tale to mainstream best seller It is the type of book that could be a self help How To work for the individual writer as well as a useful tool for the creative writing classroom The book provides both the university instructor and the individual writer a hands on system of instruction to follow in taking a potential novel from its initial germination as an idea to an opening chapter and a complete blocking out In a gradual and practical step by step procedure the book will give the inexperienced writer the actual process by which professional novelists create their works and at the same time take away the possibly intimidating aura of writing as a mystical process available to only the very clever or the mystically endowed Contents The Process The Techniques The Idea The Characters The Story The Plot Structure The Plot Elements The Complete Blocking Out The Opening Chapter The Rest of the Novel Marketing Your Novel Bibliography Glossary Index Structure and Function □ A Guide to Three Major Structural-Functional Theories Christopher S. Butler, 2003-06-30 This book and its companion volume present a detailed guide to three major structural functional theories Functional Grammar Role and Reference Grammar and Systemic Functional Grammar This first volume provides the necessary background through a discussion of the characteristics of functional theories followed by a brief analysis of six approaches to language in the light of this discussion These chapters lead to a characterization of a smaller set of structural functional grammars among which FG RRG and SFG are central An overview of each of these theories in relation to the simplex clause is then presented followed by a more critical comparison The remainder of the book deals with the structure and meaning of phrasal units the representation of situations and the treatment of tense aspect modality and polarity across the three theories A major feature of the book is the use of examples from corpora of English and other languages which serve not only to exemplify theoretical and descriptive claims but also at times to challenge them Novels and Arguments Zahava Karl McKeon, 1982 In this absorbing study the first comprehensive exploration of the rhetoric of the novel Zahava Karl McKeon investigates the complex interrelations of critical poetics grammars dialectics and rhetorics to devise a systematic means of dealing with the structure of prose works as communicative objects Using the vocabulary and conceptual resources of Aristotle and Cicero she pursues this exploration to discover the kinds of arguments that characterize novels to find a way of distinguishing novels from other discursive wholes and to discriminate different genres of the novel McKeon s arguments are supplemented by readings of a variety of texts including the novels and stories of Gunter Grass John Fowles Robert Coover and Flannery O Connor The Beginning : A novel David Markiš, 1976 Doing What Comes Naturally Stanley Fish, 1989 In literary theory the philosophy of law and the sociology of knowledge no issue has been more central to current debate than the status of our interpretations Do they rest on a ground of rationality or are they subjective impositions of a merely personal point of view In Doing What Comes Naturally Stanley Fish refuses the dilemma posed by this question and argues that while we can never separate our judgments from the contexts in which they are made those judgments are nevertheless authoritative and even in the only way that matters objective He thus rejects both the demand for an ahistorical foundation and the conclusion that in the absence of such a foundation we reside in an indeterminate world In a succession of provocative and wide ranging chapters Fish explores the implications of his position for our understanding of legal literary and psychoanalytic interpretation the nature of professional and institutional culture and the place of reason in a world that is rhetorical through and through Publisher description

Tolstoy and the Genesis of "War and Peace" Kathryn B. Feuer, 2018-10-18 Kathryn B Feuer offers remarkable insights into Leo Tolstoy's creative process while he wrote War and Peace She follows the novel through countless drafts and notes illuminating its connection to earlier unpublished novels and to crucial new sources both European and Russian A novelist herself Feuer explores the problems of character development narrative voice genre and structure that Tolstoy ultimately resolved so brilliantly

The Great Fire of London Jacques Roubaud, 2016-06-29 Part novel and part autobiography The Great Fire of London originates in the author's determination to come to terms with the sudden death of his young wife Alix whose absence haunts every page Paralyzed by grief and having failed to complete the novel he had wanted to write Jacques Roubaud begins a book about that very failure He submerges his love and his sorrow in meditations that range from despair to playfulness taking slow and painful steps toward surviving his great loss BOOK
