

A PARENTING GUIDE TO Managing Behavior

PROVIDE COMFORT

Offer the child a favorite stuffed animal, give the child a hug, or speak to them with soothing words.

Sophia, I'm sorry you had a bad dream. Let me tell you a story to help you fall back to sleep.

DISTRACT

Use a toy, story, or song to distract the child's attention from something unpleasant.

Sara, look at your favorite doll! She's dancing for you! Show me how you dance together.

GIVE CHOICES

Offer the child acceptable choices while still insisting on what needs to be done.

Jacob, you need to give the ball back to your brother. Do you want me to hand it to him or would you like to?

MAKE A GAME

Turn something that needs to be done into a game.

Denzel, you pick up the toys on one side of the room and I'll pick up the toys on the other side and we'll see who gets done first.

WHEN ... THEN

Promise something the child wants to do after the child does something they do not want to do.

Ella, when you put on your pajamas, then we'll read your favorite book.

TAKE A BREAK/ START OVER

Have the child take a break by sitting in a chair or time without a toy for 1 minute of each year of the child's life.

Carlos, you need to take a break from playing with the car. (3 minutes later) Okay, let's start over.

Behavior Modification Parent Groups A Training Manual For Professionals:

Behavior Modification Parent Groups Lynn Wikler, Anne Savino, Jean Kyle, 1976

Parents as Educators Keith J.

Topping, 2025-08-05 Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children and was supported by legislation. Particularly when children had special needs, parents required structured training and support to ensure they affectively sustained their vital role as educators at home. Many large scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world at the time for example Home Start, Portage Home Visiting Projects and Paired Reading Projects. However not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access. Some projects demonstrated spectacular results and high cost effectiveness while others proved more disappointing. Originally published in 1986, this book critically analyses over 600 international English language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes. In addition, a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials. After an introductory overview, the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed, as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school. Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters, starting with ordinary children. Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need, from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning, systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues. Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use, while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments. This volume will be of major interest to teachers, psychologists, social workers, community health personnel, community educationalists, researchers, many others working with parents and children, and to some parents themselves. This book is a re-issue originally published in 1986. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Clinical Behavior Therapy with Children Thomas H. Ollendick, Jerome A. Cerny, 2013-03-08 As noted by its title, the focus of this book is centered on an examination of behavior therapy with children in clinical settings. Throughout our goal has been to examine theoretical underpinnings, review empirical research, and illustrate clinical utility for a variety of behavioral procedures with children. In pursuing this goal, we have described child behavior therapy as an approach based on empirical methodology derived from behavioral principles and focused upon adjustment disorders of children. The hallmark of such an approach is its accountability; the extent to which the procedures and techniques presented in this text are demonstrably accountable must be determined at least partially by the reader. As students of child behavior, we have become sensitized to two trends in behavior therapy with children during the preparation of this book. First, we have been concerned with the simple application of behavioral procedures to children irrespective of developmental considerations. All too frequently assessment strategies and treatment procedures found to be useful with adults have been applied to children in an indiscriminate fashion For example some recent studies have examined and assessed the very same social skill deficits in children as in adults e g lack of eye contact delayed latency of response and absence of positive commendatory responses Surely skill deficits differ from age to age just as they differ from situation to situation *Catalog of Copyright Entries. The Best of AAMR Jan Blacher,Bruce L. Baker,2002 A historical reference that chronicles parental involvement or the surprising lack of in mental retardation services from 1876 to 2000 in America Programming Effective Human Services Walter Christian,2012-12-06 Human service programming has been the focus of much public scrutiny legislative action and applied research in recent years As a result human service providers have learned to exhibit greater respect for the needs and legal rights of their consumers the appropriateness and cost effectiveness of treatment procedures and service programs and the personnel and facilities involved in providing services to consumers Despite this encouraging trend many human service agencies are still trying unsuccessfully to meet the two fundamental criteria of effective programming 1 providing services that are effective in meeting the needs of the consumer and 2 equipping consumers to function independently of the human service system to the extent possible For example there appears to be a general acceptance of the notion that custodial institutional service programs are needed despite the fact that they are ineffective in rehabilitating and transitioning clients to the community and that they are difficult to change In addition although community based service programs have been developed as alternatives to institutional placement there is rarely sufficient transitional planning and programming to facilitate the client's progress from the institution to the community Although these problems generally are acknowledged most human service managers and practitioners are ill equipped to deal with them Specifically the technology of human service management is in need of improvement It is more theoretical than practical and it lacks sufficient field testing and empirical validation Subject Catalog, 1976 Library of Congress,1976
