1. Introduction

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program on the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy, sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group or an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program. The control group did not perform any exercise. The exercise group showed significant improvements in strength and endurance of the lower extremities compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-velocity resistance training program is effective in improving the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy, sedentary, middle-aged women.
