| Abstract:                               | Computer-integrated manufacturing (CIM) is the manufacturing approach of using computers to control the entire production process. Computer integrated manufacturing ( CIM) means different things to different people and different industries. However, regardless of the various definitions, Computer Integrated Manufacturing systems can be best described by: Systems which enable the integrated, rationalized, design, development, implementation, operation and improvement of production facilities and their output over the life cycle of the product. These systems identify and use appropriate technology to achieve their goals at minimum cost and effort (1). |
