Unit 1: Annotated Bibliography Assignment

An annotated bibliography is a list of citations to articles and documents. Each entry is followed by a brief (usually around 200 words) descriptive paragraph, the annotation. The purpose of the annotation is to inform the reader of the relevance or importance of the source cited.

For this assignment, you will find, read, and create annotations for articles related to the future in your career. This can mean different things, relative to your career. The idea is to see what the future holds for you by way of job prospects and opportunities.

A few questions might serve to give you a focus as you research: What jobs will be in demand in your field of interest? What new opportunities are expected? What growth? What roles will be needed? What area of specialization? Where will the jobs be? What are the best prospects? What are the most promising careers for your personal standards in the 2020s? DO NOT ANSWER ALL OF THESE! BUT LET ONE QUESTION LEAD YOUR SEARCH.
