Suechun Cheng,2025-10-07 An examination of surrealism s unofficial ethnography of marginalized subjectivities In interwar Paris the encounter between surrealism and the nascent discipline of ethnology led to an intellectual project now known as ethnographic surrealism In The Persistence of Masks Joyce Suechun Cheng considers the ethnographic dimension of the surrealist movement in its formative years through a close look at the reviews Documents 1929 30 and Minotaure 1933 39 as well as the surrealist writer turned ethnographer Michel Leiris s ethnography of possession Analyzing surrealist aesthetic criticism art poetry and field research in terms of a common interest in marginalized modes of subjectivity Cheng argues that the surrealists used the figures of the mask the veil the hand and the hat to radically reconceive the subject as nonhegemonic nonanthropocentric and feminine identified Though ethnographic surrealism usually refers to the collaboration between professional ethnologists at the Institut de l Ethnologie in Paris and Georges Bataille s so called dissident circle of surrealists Cheng demonstrates that surrealism s unofficial ethnography began long before the founding of the movement Starting with Andr Breton s wartime text Subject 1916 written when he was still a young psychiatric intern treating traumatized soldiers she shows how the future surrealist poet shifted from a clinical to a para ethnographic approach to subjectivity when adopting his patient s first person voice as a textual mask Revealing surrealism to be always implicitly ethnographic Cheng uncovers deep affinities between archrivals Breton and Bataille highlights psychiatry s underacknowledged role in surrealism s lay ethnography and theorizes the surrealists feminine identification as a means of critiquing power By broadening the scope of ethnographic surrealism The Persistence of Masks offers new insights that challenge longstanding beliefs about this multifaceted movement in poetry the arts and culture Masks in Horror Cinema Alexandra Heller-Nicholas,2019-10-15

The variety of signalling behaviours and hearing organs makes insects highly suitable animals for exploring and analysing signal generation and hearing in the context of neural processing, ecology, evolution and genetics. Across a variety of hearing species like moths, crickets, bush crickets, grasshoppers, cicadas and flies, the leading researchers in the field cover recent scientific progress and address key points in current research such as: How can we approach the evolution of hearing in insects and what is the developmental and neural origin of the auditory organs? How are hearing and sound production embedded in the natural lifestyle of the animals, allowing intraspecific communication but also predator avoidance and even predation? What are the functional properties of hearing organs and how are they achieved at the molecular, biophysical and neural levels? What are the neural mechanisms of central auditory processing and signal generation? The book is intended for students and researchers both inside and outside of the fascinating field of bioacoustics and aims to foster understanding of hearing and acoustic communication in insects.
