Leopards once roamed the northwestern Caucasus, throughout Africa and parts of Asia, but today are confined mainly to African game reserves. About 300 of the Asian subspecies live in the Gir Forest in India.

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be addressed. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The participants were randomly assigned to either a training group or a control group. The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic and resistance training. The control group did not exercise. Physical fitness was measured by a 6-minute walk test, and HRQL was measured by the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the training group had significantly higher physical fitness and HRQL scores than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary, middle-aged women.

Cheng, Wang, and Ishihara (1999) found that Chinese, in line with Japanese non-linear thinking, showed a preference for "holistic" over "analytic" types of reasoning, and that this preference was related to the degree of collectivism in the culture. They also found that Chinese, in line with Japanese non-linear thinking, showed a preference for "holistic" over "analytic" types of reasoning, and that this preference was related to the degree of collectivism in the culture.

PRIDE Lions are the "only truly" social cat, living in groups called "prides." A pride usually consists of around three to eight closely related females, along with one or offspring and occasionally males, one of which is a dominant. Males have territories which move from pride to pride in their area, depending on when females are ready to breed. They then defend the females and the pride's territory, which they mark by spraying urine on bushes.

It is quite common to find, in the same locality, two or three different varieties of a species, that are local variants of the same species. These latter are often partly considered as species, especially when they are much more numerous, without leading to any serious error. A fairly good example for this is the case of the Salicetum species.
