Aging , 1982

More-than-Human Aging Cristina Douglas, Andrew Whitehouse, 2024-10-11 What does later life look like when it is lived in the companionship of other species Similarly how do other species age or not with humans and what sort of a symmetries if any are brought to light around how we understand and think about aging So far aging has been investigated in the social sciences in purely human terms This is the first collection of original work that considers aging as taking place in relation to other species This volume aims to start a conversation about aging by taking its more than human participants seriously that is not only as a support for or context of human aging but also more symmetrically as agents and subjects in the process of aging The contributors draw upon richly descriptive ethnographic accounts including moments of connection between seniors and dogs in a long term care facility human care for aging laboratory animals and robotic companionship in later life The ethnographies in this volume not only enrich our understanding of more than human companionship during the human aging process but also challenge and urge us to rethink what it means to live later in life in ecologically entangled social and moral worlds
