some seemingly proof of a well developed mental life Animal Minds Donald R. Griffin, 2024-05-31 In Animal Minds Donald R Griffin takes us on a guided tour of the recent explosion of scientific research on animal mentality Are animals consciously aware of anything or are they merely living machines incapable of conscious thoughts or emotional feelings How can we tell Such questions have long fascinated Griffin who has been a pioneer at the forefront of research in animal cognition for decades and is recognized as one of the leading behavioral ecologists of the twentieth century With this new edition of his classic book which he has completely revised and updated Griffin moves beyond considerations of animal cognition to argue that scientists can and should investigate questions of animal consciousness Using examples from studies of species ranging from chimpanzees and dolphins to birds and honeybees he demonstrates how communication among animals can serve as a window into what animals think and feel just as human speech and nonverbal communication tell us most of what we know about the thoughts and feelings of other people Even when they don't communicate about it animals respond with sometimes surprising versatility to new situations for which neither their genes nor their previous experiences have prepared them and Griffin discusses what these behaviors can tell us about animal minds He also reviews the latest research in cognitive neuroscience which has revealed startling similarities in the neural mechanisms underlying brain functioning in both humans and other animals Finally in four chapters greatly expanded for this edition Griffin considers the latest scientific research on animal consciousness pro and con and explores its profound philosophical and ethical implications The Animal Mind Kristin Andrews, 2014-10-30 The study of animal cognition raises profound questions about the minds of animals and philosophy of mind itself Aristotle argued that humans are the only animal to laugh but in recent experiments rats have also been shown to laugh In other experiments dogs have been shown to respond appropriately to over two hundred words in human language In this introduction to the philosophy of animal minds Kristin Andrews introduces and assesses the essential topics problems and debates as they cut across animal cognition and philosophy of mind She addresses the following key topics what is cognition and what is it to have a mind What questions should we ask to determine whether behaviour has a cognitive basis the science of animal minds explained ethology behaviourist psychology and cognitive ethology rationality in animals animal consciousness what does research into pain and the emotions reveal What can empirical evidence about animal behaviour tell us about philosophical theories of consciousness does animal cognition involve belief and concepts do animals have a Language of Thought animal communication other minds do animals attribute mindedness to other creatures moral reasoning and ethical behaviour in animals animal cognition and memory Extensive use of empirical examples and case studies is made throughout the book These include Cheney and Seyfarth's vervet monkey research Thorndike's cat puzzle boxes Jensen's research into humans and chimpanzees and the ultimatum game Pankseep and Burgdorf's research on rat laughter and Clayton and Emery's research on memory in scrub jays Additional features such as chapter summaries annotated further reading and a glossary make this an indispensable introduction to those teaching

The Philosophy of Animal Minds Robert W. Lurz,2009-09-03 This volume is a collection of fourteen essays by leading philosophers on issues concerning the nature existence and our knowledge of animal minds The nature of animal minds has been a topic of interest to philosophers since the origins of philosophy and recent years have seen significant philosophical engagement with the subject However there is no volume that represents the current state of play in this important and growing field The purpose of this volume is to highlight the state of the debate The issues which are covered include whether and to what degree animals think in a language or in iconic structures possess concepts are conscious self aware metacognize attribute states of mind to others and have emotions as well as issues pertaining to our knowledge of and the scientific standards for attributing mental states to animals

Animal Mind — Human Mind D. R. Griffin,2012-12-06 the oleic acid on a live and wriggling sister or mother and refrain from evicting her from our hive But does the occurrence of unintelligent behavior suffice to demonstrate the total absence of mental experience under any circumstances Ethologists from some distant galaxy could easily discern examples of stupid and maladaptive behavior in our own species But do instances of human stupidity prove that none of us is ever consciously aware of what he is doing No available evidence compels us to believe that insects or any other animals experience any sort of consciousness or intentionally plan any of their behavior But neither are we compelled to believe the contrary In areas where data are few and of limited relevance dogmatic negativity can easily limit what scientists even try to investigate and thus perhaps delay or prevent important insights and discoveries Many of the participants agreed that a good starting point would be to consider what we know of our own thinking subjective feelings and consciousness and then move on to inquire whether other species experience anything similar Such an approach was once considered fallaciously anthropomorphic But it seems now to be widely if not universally recognized that this is a serious objection only if one has already assumed in advance that conscious thinking is uniquely human and the accusation of anthropomorphism is then merely a reiteration of the prior conviction
